TWO DRIVERS FACE CHARGES AFTER WRECK

Grand Jury to Study Reckless Driving Complaints; Mrs. Groom Hurt

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Counter-Charges Filed in Cady's Court Today

Charges of reckless driving have been preferred against the drivers of an auto and truck involved in a collision Saturday evening at Mingo and Main-sts, in which Mrs. Samuel F. Groom, S. Washington-st., suffered two fractured ribs and bruises.

Herbert Baugh, Rt. 7, Springfield, driver of the truck, denied a charge of reckless driving filed by Mr. Groom, and a charge of operating a truck without a chauffeur's license filed by Miller Fissell, deputy sheriff, before Mayor W. B. Cady, Monday morning. His cases were transferred to common pleas court and bond fixed at $300.

Denial Entered
Mr. Groom denied a charge of reckless driving filed by C. S. Baugh, father of the truck driver, and he was released on his own recognizance after his case was transferred to common pleas court.

Mr. and Mrs. Groom were going from the Lancaster pike into Mingo-st, when their car was struck by a truck hauling coal west on Route 56 and driven by Herbert Baugh, 19. The Groom car was badly damaged and pushed against the curb. The front of the truck was damaged and coal was spilled over the intersection.

Mrs. Groom was unconscious for a short time after the collision but asked to be taken to her home instead of the hospital. She is under the care of Dr. G. W. Heffner.

Baugh gave bond of $55 in police court for his appearance this morning on the charges.

Insufficient Lighting Causes Car Wreck

William Older, Columbus, was fined $15 and costs Monday morning by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, on an insufficient light charge resulting from an auto collision on Route 23, Sunday night, in which one person was injured.

Lorraine Chapman, Columbus, sustained a bruised back when a Ford roadster in which she was riding collided with Older's parked car about one mile north of Bloomfield Dr. R. S. Hosler, Ashville treated her injuries. The roadster was driven north by Al.

COUNTY GIRL, 14, TYPHOID VICTIM

Ruth, 14-year-old daughter of Harry Zimmerman, Atlanta, passed away at 10 p. m. Saturday in Chillicothe City hospital. Typhoid fever caused his demise.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon with burial in Gamble cemetery, Fayette-co, by C. E. Hill.

Miss Zimmerman was born in New Holland Feb. 4, 1921, a daughter of Harry and Alma Watson Zimmerman. Her father died in 1932.

The following brothers and sisters survive in addition to the father, Glenn, Grace, Opal, Hazel, Gladys, Dorothy, Paul and Robert, all at home.

SENATOR GRAVE

MOSCOW, Sept. 23—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois was still suffering today from bronchial pneumonia and physicians said his condition, though grave, was unchanged.

The senator's entire right side is affected by the illness. He has been ill since he crossed the Soviet border Friday, Sept. 13.

ARMY AIRMAN CROSSES SEA

Waitkus Plans to Continue Journey to Lithuania Despite Accident

DUBLIN, Sept. 23—With or without his plane—damaged in landing after a 22-hour flight from New York, during which he came at least once perilously close to death—Felix Waitkus, United States army pilot, planned today to continue to Kovno (Kaunas), Lithuania, as soon as possible.

His Lockheed-Vega machine, which he flew blind through rain and fog most of the way, rested on a hillside near Ballinrobe, county Mayo, one wing smashed, the propeller buckled, and the undercarriage torn away. It will be brought to Dublin airport, but may prove beyond repairing.

A lowering gasoline supply forced Waitkus to end his projected non-stop flight to Lithuania, he said, revealing that once during the trip a frozen carburetor forced his steadily down towards the unseen water, but that he was able to melt the ice in time.

"During the whole flight, I never had a glimpse of water," said the tired, 28-year-old flier. "The last land I saw was Nova Scotia as the mist through which he flew all the way across the Atlantic was encountered over Newfoundland."

Lady Mary Heath, aviation enthusiast, flew from Dublin to fetch Waitkus, but her own plane was damaged in landing at Ballinrobe. The young Wisconsin airman said he would continue by boat and rail, if necessary, since his journey to Lithuania was sponsored as a good-will mission.

DRUNKS AGAIN KEEP CADY'S COURT BUSY

Noah Skaggs, 27, Portsmouth, arrested by police Saturday night, was fined $25 and costs for being drunk and disorderly. Ordered to the county jail by Mayor Cady in police court Monday morning.

James E. Dearth, city, posted $5 bond for his appearance in police court at 7:30 o'clock tonight on an intoxication charge. S. E. Colwell, Circleville R. F. D., forfeited $5 bond posted to appear in police court this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge. George Schreckengast, Circleville R. F. D., forfeited a similar bond. Charles Grubbs, Circleville, R. F. D., posted a $3 bond for his appearance for intoxication.

Five persons arrested for intoxication Saturday night were released by Mayor Cady after receiving lectures.

ACTIVITY IN MOTOR CITY REACHES PEAK

DETROIT, Sept. 23—Automobiles made news today. Unusual activity developed in the industry as the date for its "new year" was officially set. The future of the trade-long the pacemaker for recovery—was described as "particularly bright."

Developments included: A fleet of $2,300,000 worth of new automobiles will leave Detroit tomorrow in the largest "drive-away" in the history of the industry. Predictions by Alvan Macaulay and M. M. Cullman, president and vice-president of Packard, that the future of the industry was "particularly bright."

FDR to Confer

Effort to Retain Peace in Industry Ends With Lewis' Order

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Four hundred thousand bituminous coal miners were under strike orders today.

The order to quit the mines last night was sent out to all the union locals by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, when the long conference here between representatives of the operators and the union failed to reach an agreement on a new working contract.

This was the situation that confronted President Roosevelt when he returned this morning from Hyde park.

Look to President

Both sides are looking to him to lead the way to an amicable settlement and to end the strike. He is expected to call representatives of both groups before him during the day.

The present working contract of the miners expired last midnight after it had been extended five times—since March 31—on the personal appeal of Mr. Roosevelt. The union is demanding a 10 per cent wage increase and shorter hours.

At the very minute the strike order became effective a committee of operators and miners was working furiously in a hotel here in an effort to reach an agreement. After being in session most of Sunday and last night the committee broke up at 3 a. m. today without reporting an agreement.

It will meet again during the morning and report to the full conference committee at 2 p. m. When the weary-eyed and fatigued delegates emerged from their virtual all night wrangle it was evident that neither side would yield to substantial concessions and that they intend to "fight it out and stand by their rights."

McGrady Present

This situation developed despite the presence at the conference of Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, as President Roosevelt's special representative. He was given full authority to speak for the national administration and to do all within his power to prevent a general strike.

McGrady, who was in contact with the president over the telephone throughout the day, appealed to the operators and miners to "prevent the walkout."

"It is indefensible," he said, "to allow this strike to start over a couple of pennies. The strike would cause untold suffering to 2,500,000 persons in the families of miners. The American people will never stand for it. In the name of almighty God, don't let this strike occur over a few pennies."

He got his phrase of "a few pennies" from Philip Murray, vice president of the union, who said the increase sought by the miners would cost only about $16,000 a day and would hike consumer prices only a few pennies a ton.

10 GET WORK ON HIGHWAY PROJECT

Ten additional local men were given employment Monday morning by the state highway department on the improvement of Route 104 from the Ross-co line north 13.26 miles.

The huge road laying machine of T. D. Van Camp, Columbus, awarded the contract, was put in operation Monday. The machine mixes the resurfacing material, lays and tamps it. The machines averages about a half mile a day, the highway department reported.

PEACE PARLEY NEARS CLOSE; REPORT CLASH

League Committee of Five Turns Down Italian Suggestions

CLAIM TROOPS DEAD

Ethiopians Approve Geneva's Peace Plan

By International News Service

A show-down between Italy and the League of Nations appeared imminent today as the Ethiopian crisis reached a new impasse with Rome awaiting new peace suggestions from Geneva, while league officials turned their thoughts toward possible sanctions. Important developments were:

GENEVA—The committee of five turned thumbs down on Italy's demands in Ethiopia and confirmed that conciliation attempts had broken down, bringing league face to face with the question of sanctions.

ROME—While Italy awaited new peace proposals, King George of England and King Victor Emmanuel of Italy were credited in unconfirmed reports for an exchange of assurances between the two nations that naval and air concentrations in the Mediterranean were without aggressive intent.

British to Strengthen

LONDON—Political circles expressed conviction British cabinet has decided to strengthen defensive forces.

ADDIS ABABA—H. R. Knickerbocker states the Ethiopian government is pleased with Mussolini's rejection of the league peace proposals, enabling Ethiopia to accept in principle a peace plan which actually might cause civil war in the African empire. A clash between Ethiopians and Italian Somali troops was reported at Gerlogubi.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 23—Unconfirmed reports reached here today of disturbances at Gerlogubi between Ethiopian and native Italian Somali troops in which several were killed.

Deserted Italians

The Somalis, according to the reports, had deserted from the Italian side to serve Ethiopia some weeks ago, but recently caused trouble.

Ethiopians ordered them to give up their rifles, and the Somalis refused, according to the reports. The clash ensued.

Gerlogubi is in southeastern Ethiopia not far from the Italian Somali border.

WHITE JOINS RACE FOR CONGRESS JOB

The lid was pried off the Republican side of the contest for congress from the 11th Ohio district during the week-end when Tom P. White, Fairfield ecumani, tossed his hat into the arena.

White ran a losing race against Renick W. Dunlap in 1934 losing the nomination although he carried three of the five counties. Dunlap's margin in Pickaway and Ross-co was too much for White to overcome in Fairfield, Perry and Hocking.

The only other person definitely in the race is Harry Welch of Rockbridge, who lost to Congressman Moll G. Underwood in the Democratic primary.

TURNEY LEIST ALIVE AND WELL, HE SAYS

A report that Turney Leist, well known Washington-twp farmer, was killed by an automobile Saturday night was termed false today by none other than Mr. Leist himself.

"If I'm dead I don't know anything about it," the reported victim declared when a reporter called his residence to obtain his obituary.

TOWNSEND PENSION PLAN AIRED IN CITY

Thomas S. Wright, Fairfield-co dirt farmer, who ran for congress a couple of years ago, was in Circleville Monday attempting to start a Townsend old age pension organization.

He visited several local persons seeking a local organizer.

Most Costly Locomotive Ever Built to Cut Time

New Santa Fe Diesel locomotive

Tests prove this new Diesel locomotive of the Santa Fe railroad will cut the running time from Chicago to Los Angeles by a day. Speed up to 110 miles with a 11-car standard-weight Pullman train was recorded, but average running speed of course will be much less. The new locomotive, which has 3,600 horsepower and weighs 240 tons, cost $360,000, thus is the most expensive locomotive ever built. Its maintenance and operating costs, however, are expected to save a considerable sum. This type locomotive will haul a faster section of the road's noted train, "The Chief," the new train to be called, "The Super Chief." Present running time between two cities is 53 hours, 45 minutes.

AGE PENSION SET-UP IS HIT

Sherill Committee Discloses Berrodin Usurping Power of County Boards

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23—A serious indictment of the administration of old age pensions in Ohio, coupled with charges that the "head of the division of aid for the aged has usurped authority belonging to local county boards," was brought against the division today by the Sherill Committee.

In a report, bristling with criticism of the conduct of Ohio's old age pension department, the Ohio Government survey pointed out that more economical management, elimination of "hasty, inadequate and political methods of investigation," could save the state $3,400,000 annually.

This amount could be saved, the Sherill group asserts, despite recommendations that more employees be hired to investigate cases, and salaries be raised "to obtain better qualified people for the work."

No Cases Named

The controversies between Henry J. Berrodin, chief of the Pension division, and numerous county boards, over appointments came in for direct criticism, although no cases were specifically named. "A mistaken policy has been followed so that aid for aged staffs have been kept so small that thorough work and investigation were impossible," the report says. This reference may be taken directly as applying to the recent battle

HOPPER, FAMOUS ACTOR, IS DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 23—DeWolf Hopper, famous stage and light opera star, and innkeeper for his recital of "Casey At Bat" died at St. Luke's hospital here today.

He was 77 years old. His death was attributed to heart trouble. He was active to the very end of his life. Hopper completed a broadcast over a National Broadcasting chain yesterday afternoon. Two radio station officials believed him ill and called a doctor.

First Male Student In Economics Class

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 23—William G. Slocum, a freshman at Pennsylvania state college, today became the first male student ever to enroll in the college's home economics course.

Slocum, whose home is in Taylor, Pa., plans a career in hotel management. Heretofore, about 270 girls, but no boys, have majored in home economics annually at state college.

AGED WOMAN PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Amanda Reber, 85, Dies in East Ringgold; Funeral is Private

Mrs. Amanda Reber, aged 85, died Saturday evening at her home in East Ringgold of infirmities. She was a daughter of Benjamin and Minerva Ashbrook Dunnick, Pickaway-co pioneers.

Her husband, Henry Reber, preceded her in death. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lyman May of Ashville, and a son, V. T. Reber of Kenton, in addition to six grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

The body will be removed to the home of Mrs. May where private services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Hanover in charge. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Son.

HUNGRY THIEVES INVADE MOORE'S

A hungry gang of thieves entered the John Moore restaurant, E. Ohio-st, Sunday night for their evening meal.

They devoured a large ham, a part of a brick of cheese, drank beer, and took candy, chewing gum, cigarettes and smoking tobacco of an estimated value of $15. They obtained no money, Mr. Moore stated, as no change was left in the restaurant.

Entrance was made by prying open a rear window. Before leaving they spilled a basket of onions on the floor.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff issued a warning to local merchants Monday morning urging them to keep a close lookout for bad checks. He explained about every year, during the corn-cutting season, he receives numerous calls concerning worthless checks.

CHOIR SINGER GOES ON TRAGEDY TRIAL

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 23—Yanked by fate from a village church choir to the shadow of the electric chair, Newell Paige Sherman, 26, Sutton Scoutmaster and "model" youth, today begins a desperate fight for his life for the "American tragedy" drowning of his pretty Alice Dudley Sherman, 22, his wife and mother of his two babies.

It is the nation's third American tragedy trial. It is the second since Theodore Dreiser's classic book placed the lasting tag of "American Tragedy" on a brutal and peculiarly erotic type of murder—the murder of a woman by a man so that the man might woo another woman.

RED MEN HEAR LAWYER LAUD LOGAN SPEECH

400 Attend Indian Day Festivities Under Elm; Redfern is Speaker

"The speech of the great Chief Logan given on the grounds on which you are now standing will always live with the world as a great classic and is comparable in many ways with Lincoln's Gettysburg address," Attorney F. N. R. Redfern, Adelphi, told a crowd of 400 persons Sunday at the Indian Day celebration at Logan Elm Park.

"Both of the speeches were given without long preparation, they are both brief and to the point," Mr. Redfern explained. The attorney gave a brief outline of historical events including the Boston tea party and the life of Pocahontas, both of which have significance in the lodge work of the Improved Order of Red Men and the Degree of Pocahontas.

Explains Locations

In his address he explained the location of the Indian villages known in Pickaway-co, namely the camps of Cornstalk, Logan and the Grenadier Squaw. The speaker termed Congo as the "highway of the local Indian nation."

The Indian Day celebration was the first event of its kind held

John McLean (1785-1861), founder of the Lebanon Western Star, and Don R. Mellett (1886-1926), Canton News, who was assassinated during his drive on Canton's underworld, were elected from five nominees. A two-thirds vote of 70 judges are necessary for election.

The two will be paid tribute at the annual Hall of Fame dinner Friday, Nov. 15, at the university.

STATE AGENTS ARREST FOUR; 3 GO TO JAIL

Fourth Denies Charge, to Be Tried Before Judge Adkins, Saturday

FIND ILLICIT BOOZE

John Ferguson Assessed $500 on Charges

Three Circleville men have received heavy fines in common pleas court as the result of a series of raids conducted over the week end by state officers, and the case of a fourth man has been tentatively set for next Saturday.

John Ferguson, 55, Lancaster pike, was assessed fines totalling $500 and costs for possession of liquor for sale without a permit and selling without a license. Ferguson was fined $250 on each charge and ordered to the county jail.

Scott, Irvin Fined

Roland Scott, 43, W. Main-st, was fined $150 and costs for illegal possession and Palestine Irvin, 53, colored, E. Ohio-st, was given a fine of $100 and costs on a similar charge. Both were ordered to the county jail until the fines are settled.

J. G. Costlow, 71, S. Washington-st, denied illegal possession and his case has been tentatively set for next Saturday. His bond was fixed at $200 by Judge Adkins. Costlow is arranging to furnish bond. Attorney C. A. Leist represents Mr. Costlow.

Three Raids Saturday

The state agents in charge reported small quantities of liquor were found in the raids. One raid was conducted Friday and three others Saturday night.

ELECTRICITY HITS WORKER

Glenn Hartman, Columbus, Hurt As Crane Hits Wires

Glenn Hartman, 25, of Fourth-ave, Columbus, an employee of the state highway department, was seriously hurt with a chance to recover after being nearly electrocuted on Route 104, southwest of Circleville, Monday afternoon. He was brought to Berger hospital.

He was working on the Route 104 improvement when the crane chain swinging through the air came in contact with high tension wires. Hartman was holding the chain in a ravine when the contact was made. His arms and legs were badly lured.

Dr. E. L. Montgomery was called and was administering aid this afternoon.

The accident happened about one-quarter of a mile south of the Wayne-twp school. The call for aid was sent over the school's telephone.

Hartman is unmarried.

ALLEN FLOYD SENT TO STATE'S PRISON

For violation of a parole granted Sept. 6 on an indictment for passing a worthless check, Allen Floyd, Tarleton, was sentenced to from one to three years in the Ohio penitentiary Monday noon by Judge J. W. Adkins in common pleas court.

Floyd was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong and Miller Russell Saturday afternoon in Tarleton for intoxication.

Poems That Live

QUIET WORK

One lesson, Nature, let me learn of thee,
One lesson which in every wind is blown,
One lesson of two duties kept at one
Though the loud world proclaim their enmity:
Of toil unsevered from tranquility;
Of labor, that in lasting fruit outgrows
Far noisier schemes, accomplished in repose,
Too great for haste, too high for rivalry.

Yes, while on earth a thousand discords ring,
Man's fitful uproar mingling with his toil,
Still do thy sleepless ministers move on,
Their glorious tasks in silence perfecting;
Still working, blaming still our vain turmoil;
Laborers that shall not fail, when man is gone.

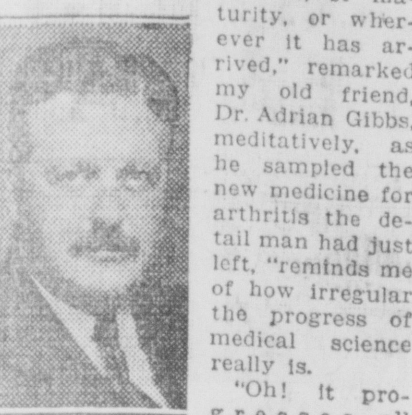

—Matthew Arnold

Old Friend Meditates On Medical Progress

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"WHAT YOU were telling yesterday about the fellow with the heart block, and about the electrocardiograph, having reached the age of consent, or maturity, or whatever it has received," remarked my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, meditatively, as he sampled the new medicine for arthritis he had just left.

Dr. Clendingen

"Oh! it progresses, all right," he agreed, after my horrified protest, "but at a terrific waste of human energy, and what is often naively called clinical observation. 'Which means just the opposite of what is usually said—you can't try it out on the dog. If you could only come to conclusions in the laboratory you'd be all right. But unfortunately we're human doctors, and dogs can't talk, and the only way we can make any progress is to try out this, that and the other that more likely than not some kid waiting for a practice has thought up."

"Medical science progresses, all right. It's when we say to each other, 'Well, the kid is right, he's smarter than he sounds, what he said really is so—that medical science progresses.'"

"Trouble is, what happens most of the time is that after some disease, or method, has been proposed, we keep on using it when we know in our hearts it's no good because Dr. Jones is still monkeying with it, and then some really smart guy shouts—'The darn thing is bunk'—and then we quit it. But that ain't progress. That is what is called by the inventor of the method—iconoclasm or destructive criticism.

"You know," he continued, reflectively, throwing the arthritis sample into the waste basket, "I have been in practice so long and been through so many whirlwinds of fashion, that I have changed my mind as often as a brain truster."

"I remember when constitutional inadequacy used to be called vice-ropiosis, and nephrosis was just plain chronic parenchymatous nephritis. 'There are fashions in drugs. Long time ago it was all strychnine. Old Dorskluck up there, the apothecary, has got his shelves filled with strychnine waiting for a bull market. Aspirin is the thing today. I use just as much of it as I used to use strychnine, and it's a better drug, I guess, I believe that's progress."

"I remember when they used to anchor kidneys—not only the floating ones, but also the ones that were a little loose. It cured—now let's see—headache, lumbago, neurasthenia, uric acid, diathesis, laziness, spots before the eyes, and hemoglobinuria. It was mostly performed on the upper classes, though. Delicate operations seldom reach the poor. Maybe that is why there are so many of them."

"You know the pioneer surgeons have a lot to answer for. 'That Lawson Tait, way back in the eighties, who used to remove gizzards by little cysts on them. Think of the human suffering he caused. The medical profession got over it, though."

"Yes," he said, in answer to my protest, "it is hard on the victims. Reminds me of what a guide did to me in Italy once when I remarked that they didn't seem to have many monuments to doctors. He took me to a cemetery."

"But we progress. Ain't you glad you're not living in the floating kidney era of surgery?"

"Progress," he mused, as he fished the arthritis sample back out of the waste basket.

PLACEMENTS GAIN IN U. S. SERVICE

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23.—Placements in private industry by offices of the National Reemployment service in Ohio increased 62 per cent during the past week, H. R. Justice, Ohio Director, announced Monday.

A week ago this type of placement numbered 696 while during the past week the number increased to 1,128.

Placements with contractors engaged in public works declined 23.4 per cent during the week, to 666 placements from 870 similar placements a week ago.

Total placements, both public and private, increased 14.5 per cent during the week. This figure a week ago was 1,566. It inclined to 1,794 during the past week. New applications numbered 1,735, an increase of 8.9 per cent over the 1,595 new applications of a week ago.

here under direction of the lodge and auxiliary. The groups plan to make the event an annual affair.

An invitation to the lodge to hold its 1936 convention in Circleville was extended by Fred C. Clark, representing local citizens in a welcoming address to the group. "The lodge could select no more fitting environs for its encampment," he stated.

Rev. T. C. Harper, pastor of the United Brethren church, gave the invocation, and A. P. Hatch, Athens, great Sachem of Ohio, gave the selection "Our Flag."

Presents Logan Speech

Laurence Cameron, Columbus, who has studied Indian dialect of a number of reservations, presented Logan's speech as he believed it was given by the chief.

Venus Schwab, Leola council No. 1, Dayton, recited parts of the poem Hiawatha, dealing with the origin of the Indian peace pipe.

Members of the local tribe in full regalia presented a pantomime showing Indian council customs. Wigwams were erected on the grounds for the occasion.

The musical program was presented by the Circleville High school band and members of Howard Hall post, American Legion, were in charge of auto parking.

State officers attending the celebration included: Mr. Hatch; Fred Newhouse, Toledo, great chief of records; M. V. Clevenger, Columbus, great prophet; George C. Stebleton, Lancaster, member of orphan's home board; E. C. Wilcox, Dayton, past great Sachem; Ralph Binns, Springfield, great Mashinewa; Clarence Runck, Dayton, great Sannap, Maybelle Gamble, Van Wert, great Pocahontas; Ida Binns, Springfield, great Winonah; Nellie Mae Curtis, Troy, great prophetess; Ruth Yantis, Troy, member of orphan's board, and Nora Tumbleson, Van Wert, past great Pocahontas.

L. E. Miller, Watt-st, past great Sachem, introduced the speakers and presented the state officers.

A basket picnic was held on the grounds at noon.

SAFETY ON CITY STREETS

EVANSTON, Ill., with a population of 64,000, reports one of the lowest automobile accident rates in the country. In 1934, the city had but five deaths from this cause, an average of seven per 100,000.

Continuous safety education is said to be one factor in the remarkable showing. But Evanston also follows up every accident with utmost care, studying reports submitted by the involved motorists, noting the points where crashes seem most likely to occur, fix responsibility where possible and introducing traffic control remedies without delay.

This kind of an alert system of checking inherently dangerous conditions deserves to be emulated in every major municipality. Every highway accident has a lesson for the authorities, and these lessons should be carefully studied from the standpoint of the future welfare of motorists and pedestrians alike.

ITALY PLAYS LONE HAND

MUSSOLINI is not an easy man to budge but even Mussolini will find that the growing pressure of public opinion in practically all the nations will put him at a decided disadvantage if he insists in playing a lone hand.

As Secretary of State Hull has pointed out, a war such as Italy contemplates will not be waged alone on Ethiopia but will be an act of hostility towards the well-being and prosperity of all civilized peoples.

It is noticeable that Mussolini, while eager to bid farewell to his troops as they depart for Africa, has shown no inclination to go up the gangplank. He believes that he would be more valuable at home. Ethiopians have other ideas on the subject.

A Brooklyn pharmacist, after having his safe robbed five times, has decided to keep his money in the ice box. He's not the first one to have frozen assets.

Il Duce certainly must have worked miracles with Italian finance. There he is, contemplating a war in Africa without the slightest effort to borrow American money.

Congressional speeches cost the nation $800,000. That's a terrible price to pay for being bored to death.

Ethiopia's language, it now appears, contains no profane epithets. When followers of the Lion of Judah catch an Italian, they will say with something besides words.

It is easy to kill business. You just tax enterprise and offer tax exempt bonds and let nature take its course.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

On her twenty-fourth birthday Carol Kennedy, coming into a vast fortune, suddenly announces to her relatives that she is giving up her old home in Connecticut, where she has lived as an orphan, to move to New York to find happiness and freedom. Among those attending Carol's birthday party are her cousin, Kathy Prentice, and her fiancé, Dr. Owen Crato, whom she is marrying for social prestige. Unattractive Carol, who knows nothing of parties, pretty clothes and beauty, secretly admires Owen. Carol attends her old nurse when she tells her of her plan. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 4

CAROL WAS awake when the dawn came. Awake and trembling with eagerness and excitement. Life was a glorious play yet to be written, cast and scenically set. And Carol Kennedy was going to play its star role.

Lying back in the great carved walnut bed in which she had been born, the girl, dreaming vague happy pictures of the mild excitement provided by her limited imagination, little realized the shadings of drama which were to color her life.

What should she do first? Should she buy clothes? Should she find an apartment? There were so many things to do, so many things to be done at once. The apartment, after all should be . . .

Carol's pleasant reverie came to an end with Nanny's entrance. If Nanny hoped that Carol's moodiness of the night before was ended, her hopes were dashed with Carol's greeting:

"Good morning, Nanny. If by any odd chance I have any frivolous clothes to wear to New York, will you find them, please, because I want to get going in an hour?"

The lumbering old-fashioned limousine was crossing the bridge over the Harlem river at 137th street when Robbins turned to Carol: "Where will you be going, Miss Carol?"

"I don't know exactly, Robbins. What would you do if you were looking for an apartment?"

Robbins made a gesture of thinking; he scratched his head. "Well, now, I think I'd go back to my own neighborhood and ask the neighbors where there might be some place."

"That won't work, Robbins, because you see I've never lived in New York."

Surprise almost choked Robbins. "Is it for you, Miss Carol?"

"It is," she said with a touch of asperity in her voice. "Let's go and look over the East Side in the Fifth."

But the East Fifties availed her nothing. Carol didn't want a big apartment because she didn't want servants. She didn't want a hole in the wall either. She thought she might find what she wanted in Greenwich Village but unfamiliar odors assailing her nose and darkness where light should have been soon depressed her in that neighborhood and she decided that her method of finding a home was all wrong. It was time to consult the newspapers.

Over her egg Benedicte at the Plaza, she studied the classified ads on apartments. Her questing eye felt with surprise and delight on a boxed ad at the head of a column.

Bronson and Goodhue, Real Estate. And discreetly in the corner: Isobel Bronson, Apartments (and in the other) Mary Goodhue, Country Homes.

Good old Mary and Isobel. Their last year at Vassar, with Carol, they'd planned to go into the real estate business. Of course, they'd have just the thing for her and it would be such fun seeing them after four years.

She called for her check and was folding the change neatly in her billfold when her Cousin Kathy, the latest of hats hiding one eye, hailed her.

"Hi, Carol! What are you doing in town today, darling?" She dropped muff, gloves and bags on the table, and before giving Carol a chance to answer, continued:

"I hated to walk out on your birthday party last night, Carol, but we had to go. Oh, it's all so thrilling. Carol, I wish I had a nice, regulated life like yours. Mine is an endless round of meetings, luncheons, stupid parties and hardly any time for myself."

And Carol did. She adored the soft yellow Angora sweater with its high neckline. She viewed herself in the dashing dark brown sweater that pulled low over one eye and found herself paying $18 for a pair of brown suede gauntlet gloves with enormous cuffs.

Isobel surveyed her critically and smiled proudly of her work. "Here, a shopping. I suppose that's what you're in town for?"

"No," said the new Carol. "I'm as a matter of fact in town for a cocktail party myself today. Then hurriedly changing the subject, she said, 'You looked lovely last night.'"

"Did you like that, Ted rag?" Kathy asked. "I picked it up for a song at . . ."

Carol waited breathlessly for the name of the shop but Kathy glanced at her watch. "Heavens, my lunch, the Victory hall committee meeting started hours ago. See you soon . . ." her voice drifted off in a wake of perfume.

Well! Carol had told her first lie and discovered it gave her an air of prepossession. I don't know when I've enjoyed anything so much as telling Kathy I was going to a party, she thought.

A few minutes later she stood in the outer office of Bronson and Goodhue. She was writing a note on one of her visiting cards when a door opened and with a whoop Isobel Bronson descended on her.

"Carol, darling! Where have you been for the last four years? Oh, Mary! Come see who's home. The gal who got us through college!"

There were so many things for the three of them to say. Inquiries about each other's lives. Sympathy for Carol. Do you remember this and do you remember that?

Mary begged Carol to wait for her since she had to keep an appointment but Isobel had other plans. "I'm going to take a my mother, Carol. Jean Stewart is, having a mob in to celebrate the opening of her show and I want you to come along."

"I really came to talk business with you, Isobel." Carol said.

"We can talk business later, Isobel was busy putting away fling cards.

"And besides," Carol offered in a small voice, "I'm not dressed for a party."

Isobel was well aware of the quality and cost of the tweed suit, the crepe de chine blouse and English felt shoes the other girl wore. She thought she had never seen anything more unattractive before in her life but aloud she said:

"You can wear anything to a cocktail party in New York but if you'd really like to get in on something I've just discovered, I'll take you around the corner to my pet shop where they do up sweaters and hats that'll knock your eye out. You'll love it."

And Carol did. She adored the soft yellow Angora sweater with its high neckline. She viewed herself in the dashing dark brown sweater that pulled low over one eye and found herself paying $18 for a pair of brown suede gauntlet gloves with enormous cuffs.

Isobel surveyed her critically and smiled proudly of her work. "Here, a dash of my lipstick . . . now look! Look! She wanted to stare at herself. But she picked up her new gloves and followed Isobel to the waiting taxi. Isobel chattered:

"Jeanie is a darling but exceedingly dumb. You can be dumb if you're pretty enough. I always say . . . She changed the subject quickly. Carol was brilliant and plain. "Tell me, darling what you've been doing."

Carol's impulse was to answer, "Nothing," but she remembered how well she'd gotten over with her white tie to Kathy so she smiled knowingly, shrugged her shoulders and said, "I'll tell you later, Isobel; tell me more about yourself."

AT THE CIRCLE

Russell Hopton enacts the quick-witted, fast-talking, press agent who, with Irene Ware as a newspaper columnist, manages to change the production from a flop to a box-office attraction after involving the theatre and its employees with the police of several states.

Other members of the cast of "Cheers of the Crowd" include Harry Holman, Bradley Page, John Quillan, Roberta Gale, Wade Boteler, John H. Dilson and Betty Blythe. Vin Moore is credited with the direction of the original story by George Wagner.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Between dangerous thrills and dangerous romance, there is something doing every minute in "China Seas"—the new all-star Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama which opened yesterday at the Cliftona Theatre.

The stars are Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Wallace Beery. It is a picture in which interest never slackens, and action never lags. It takes its place among the finest entertainment vehicles of the new screen season.

Part of the story is played in the howling fury of a tropical hurricane on the last frontier, the wild southeastern coast of Asia. It is one of the most spectacular sequences ever filmed.

"China Seas" deals with the odd love story of the hard-bitten young skipper of a coastwise liner, played by Gable, and "China Doll," a lovely wanderer in the Asiatic ports, played by Miss Harlow. Involved with them is a mysterious trader, Wallace Beery, who is suspected of being the master mind of a piracy plot.

By DEWE PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

First Of Series Of Political Diagnoses Finds Pennsylvania On Fence

EDITOR'S NOTE—In order to gauge the temper of the country toward the New Deal at a time when the President, himself, is about to gauge that temper, The Washington Merry-Go-Round will carry a series of political diagnoses from various sections of the United States. This is the first of the series.

PITTSBURGH—Whether the vast industrial empire which is the State of Pennsylvania goes for or against the New Deal in 1936 depends chiefly on a handful of machine Democratic bosses and what they do in the next few months.

If the election were held today, the miracle probably would take place, and this stronghold of Republican conservatism, which boasts Boies Fenrose, Matt Quay, and Joe Grandy, would go Democratic.

That is the definite trend today. Roosevelt has gained since 1932, and the Democratic machine has been hoisted with him. Even Joe Guifey, Democratic boss of the state, who for years played ball with the Mellons, the Dave Reeds, and other pillars of Republicanism, has traveled to a position of some popularity and considerable respect as a result of his first-term performance in the Senate.

But all this is built on precarious and shifting soil. Pennsylvania has learned what she could not seem to learn for half a century—the art of scratching ballots. And many things may upset the New Deal's newly found popularity.

Parole Scandal!

One of these recently has cropped out in the Parole Board scandal.

New Machine—Old Faces

Meanwhile Western Pennsylvania is developing a smooth-running Democratic machine while the old Republican machine is full of squeaks and rattles. Some of the cogs of the Democratic machine formerly were vigorous ward workers for the Republicans, transferring their allegiance to the Democrats when they saw a new bandwagon driving by.

In 1931 and in three elections thereafter, the people of Pittsburgh rebelled against the old Republican bosses and when the latter tried to hang on to control, the county eventually became heavily Democratic.

Now for its fifth successive election, the old Republican crowd again has captured several important nominations for county offices and faces its fifth defeat. Chief of them is Senator Jimmy Coyne who squeaked through to a nomination for county commission, when he got out a strong machine vote in a primary characterized generally by light balloting.

But Coyne finds himself opposed by some of his former ward lieutenants, now wearing the Democratic label, including John Verona, Alderman of the Hill district and long a dictator of the negro vote, Luke Sullivan and his brother, former Congressman P. J. "Paddy" Sullivan, czar of Pittsburgh's biggest controlled district, and Charles Papale, new Democratic nominee for Clerk of Courts. Two former independent Republicans, city councilmen P. J. McArdle and Charles Anderson, are also Democratic nominees for the same offices to which they were elected four years ago as Republicans.

Thus the smooth Democratic organization has gained strength from both ends of its former Republican opposition.

David L. Lawrence, state Democratic chairman, was a candidate for county commissioner four years ago with Coyne support and they were partners in an insurance business, but recent indications have been that they are now genuinely at the outs politically.

With indications pointing to a Democratic victory in November, Republicans thus find themselves gravely menaced by men who until recently were powers in their own party.

Contracts and Politics

What has reacted as a boomerang against the Democrats has been the fact that simultaneously with these appointments, the parole and prison system is planning to spend $17,000,000 on maintenance and improvements—a record for the state.

Politics and contracts are old bedfellows in Pennsylvania, as several newspapers critical of the Administration have warned Democratic Governor Earle with great delight.

Up until the Parole scandal, Earle had kept the old-line politics pretty well at bay, had given a surprisingly good account of his first year in office. But now the political barrage is coming his way.

On how tightly he holds the reins over his state bosses for the next twelve months, is going to depend whether Pennsylvania fulfills Jim Farley's proud boast that it will go overwhelmingly New Deal in 1936.

FOUR SEVENS BID

ALL SORTS OF odd hands are at times held, and all kinds of singular events are not uncommon at the bridge table. Mr. Gordon B. Nelson sent in the hand shown today. He set West and dealt. His wife played East. Mr. Edward V. Cheney sat South and played with his wife. Both couples are well known in Portland, Me., where they reside. It is a pleasure to receive such unusual hands.

Bidding went: First round, West, 2-Clubs; North, 2-Diamonds; East, 2-Hearts; South, 3-Spades. Second round, West, 4-Clubs; North, 4-Spades; East, 6-Diamonds; South, 5-Diamonds. Third round, West, 5-Hearts; North, 6-Diamonds; East, Pass; South, Pass. Fourth round, West, 7-Clubs; North, 7-Diamonds; East, Pass; South, Pass. Fifth round, West, Pass; South, Pass. Sixth round, West, 7-Hearts; North, 7-Spades; East, Pass; South, Pass.

West and North hands are double chance (two void suits), while East is "cane" in diamonds. Of course grand slams may be made at any of the four suits bid. As holder of the highest ranking suit Mr. Cheneyvert was the lucky one who became declarer. Of course nobody could double any contract offered.

Siamese Quadruplets

An engineering friend, until recently stationed near Bangkok, just handed to me the dizziest hand I ever have seen. He stated that it was dealt some months ago, one evening in a construction camp where he was living. At the time I was given the hand I had no intention of publishing it, so I rejected to obtain the names of the players. My friend was sitting out and noted down the hand.

South dealt and passed. So did the remaining players. Probably it was well that this happened. Almost anything might have resulted had some player opened the auction and started lively bidding. Only once before have I seen a deal giving each of the four players exact similitudes of the remaining hands. The hand should furnish material for serious study by ardent puzzle lovers.

ALL RESERVED TICKETS GONE; 2 MEN READY

DAVEY WANTS FIFTY The honorable Martin L. Davey, governor of Ohio, has requested 50 football tickets for each game played at Ohio State university this fall, we are told—were not Mr. Davey and Mr. Rightmire, president of the school, at odds, the governor might ask for one whole side of the field, who knows?—Anyway our reply to Mr. Davey's request for the 50 ducats, if it is true, would be a pair of seats behind some post *

FOX-COON DAY SHOW The sixth annual fox and soon dog field trials of the Ross-coon conservation league will be held Sunday, Sept. 29, on Rt. 277, 10 miles north of Chillicothe—A wild fox chase starts at 5 a. m. with coon dog trials at 10—Entry fees are charged with cash prizes to winning dogs—A number of Pick-away coultians are expected to participate *

GOOD IRISH NAMES COLLEGE PUBLICITY—Some of the candidates for Hunk Anderson's North Carolina State team are Ryniska, Kubisa, Plosena, Sabol, Cara, Aacia, Kuzma, Kar-ejva, Weitlauf, Berinsky, Chien-jeva, Buteranski, Siniscalchi, Mastrolia, Moeszinger, and Gadd, by gad!—Yale has a guard named John Harvard Castle—Army has another Kopeckak, brother of the famous end of a few years ago; this one is Arpad, a fullback—Pitt has a guard named Dante Talle-tezza, maybe Joe Sutherland is going to present "Cavalleria Rusticana"—My Ubl, former Big Ten star who was reported near death a couple of years ago, is expected to go great guns for Drake; he'll be performing in the Ohio Stadium against the Buckeyes *

WHO DO YOU LIKE? There'll be a lot of money bet on the Baer-Louis fight tomorrow night and there are a lot of conflicting opinions—Today Edward Neil, sports editor for AP, picked Baer, while Dave Walsh, INS sports chief, put his O. K. on Louis a week ago—Anyway it will be a great fight and a million-dollar game *

Griffith's Injury Forces Back-field Revision; Hard Drills Planned

It seemed almost certain today that Johnny Griffith, big Tiger backfield man, would be out of football for at least another week because of his shoulder injury, so Coach Jack Landrum intended to try to make Johnny Jenkins a ball carrier. Griffith, after intercepting a pass and running it back to mid-field against Groveport last Friday in the Tigers' first victory in three years, was thrown hard on a shoulder he injured in an earlier practice. The shoulder was taped tightly today and Griffith's doctor told him "no soap" for football for a little while.

Appeared At End Jenkins, prior to the Groveport game, had been in only two practice sessions. He looked pretty good at an end, so Landrum, starting this evening, planned to see what he could do in the back-field. Fear that Dave Jackson, who played a neat game against Groveport, might have a broken wrist was alleviated when his dad, Doctor H. D., reported the wrist was only sprained. Jackson was expected to be in uniform tonight for another drill.

While Will Friley used only a few offensive plays against Groveport, there are a lot more in the little blue book, so the Red and Black mentor is expected to give him orders to spring a few against Holy Rosary Friday. The Irish team from Columbus has the best aggregation in the school's history and will come here hoping for a big victory. Coach Landrum's boys are also hoping to continue their winning and stop the long streak of the Columbusites.

Blocking-Tackling Every man on the squad is to get a lot of blocking and tackling practice this week. By smoothing up these departments and producing some kind of an electric spark to get his linemen off their haunches and driving to move the opposing line, Landrum hopes to have his squad all primed for Rosary.

One youth who is to get a lot of work this week is Red Ruff, whose kick-offs against Groveport were not so hot. Ruff, however, had been practicing the kick-off only one night. The fact that the game was the first of the year also cut into his efficiency as a "kicker-offer."

While last Friday's crowd was a large one, much bigger than any of last season, the throng expected to attend this week's game is even larger.

COUNTY CAGE TILTS DRAWN; OPEN NOV. 15

Girls Games to Again See Toss in Vogue; Meet all Opponents

The county basketball schedule approved by the athletic committee was announced by George McDowell, superintendent of schools, Wednesday afternoon.

First games under the schedule open Nov. 15 and the schedule continues thirteen weeks to the county tournament. The committee ruled all referees will be sent out by the athletic committee and a referee rating card will be used for each school. Two referees will be appointed by the committee for the county tournament.

All girls' games will be played with the "toss in" instead of "center jump."

The schedule of games follows:

- Nov. 15 Monroe at Deereck, Pickaway at Walnut, Perry at Muhlenberg, Jackson at Satterck, Washington at Ashville.
- Nov. 22 Deereck at Walnut, Pickaway at Walnut, Muhlenberg at Darby, Satterck at Perry, Ashville at Jackson, Washington at Washington.

STANFORD LOOMS AS COAST STANDOUT WITH CALIFORNIA THREATENING TITLE

By "BABE" HOLLINGBERRY Head Coach, Washington State College

PULLMAN, Wash., Sept. 23.—It is the consensus of opinion of those who know on the Pacific coast that Stanford university has the edge again to be the standout team in the 1935 season.

I heartily concur in this general opinion.

First of all it is hard to beat Old Man Experience. Stanford without a doubt, has experience plus, with almost an entirely veteran team.

Van Dellen, halfback and Hollingberry, safety for the mighty Indians of 1934, is the only loss by graduation. Claude Callaway is unfortunately lost in the line, due to ill health. The balance of the Sons of Red eleven is intact. This is their third year together and if proper morale is maintained it will be their best.

Bears Coming Up

Crowding Stanford for first place honors will be the up-and-coming California Bears under the proficient guidance of their new mentor, Leonard "Stub" Allison. California was an "in and out" last season, but this fall should really find its true strength. Last fall the Bears had their greatest freshman team of all time, not even excepting the wonder team of 1920-22, developed from the 1919 frosh.

I believe that after a fair start the California outfit will be of championship caliber in November and next year should be at the top.

At Los Angeles great stir is being made to insure a future variety by a great Trojan freshman collection. I do not think it possible for the once mighty Trojans to match the strength of their northern rivals this year, but Howard Jones will undoubtedly turn out a very fine crew that will make the first division.

Northern Threat

Jimmy Phelan has brought the University of Washington Huskies along rapidly and fans in the northwest predict that the championship shall return to their territory. Although several of Phelan's 1934 stars have been graduated, he will have a combination returning that will be extremely hard to beat. His sensational sophomore backfield of last season, which included Cain, Haynes, Legg and Nogowski, returns. With the necessary experience this quartet should be the most feared on the coast, with the possible exception of Stanford's great backfield array—Paulman, Hamilton, Alustiza and Grayson.

On our own campus, Washington State, everything depends on how ably our new line material fills five gaping holes left by graduation. With only two men returning to our forward wall, this year's conference standing is a very shaky problem. Captain George Theodoratus, colorful and efficient Greek gladiator, will be missing at the left tackle berth. Together with his loss will be that of both ends and both guards.

Fortunately, we will have Quarterback Goddard, the sensational sophomore of last year, and three seasoned men to support him in the backfield. Washington State will be struggling to keep out of the lower bracket.

Both Oregon and Oregon State are going through the process of rebuilding. Coaches Lon Stiner of Oregon State and Prink Callison of the University of Oregon have lost many men by graduation, but have fortified themselves well in spring practice and it would not surprise me greatly to see either of these teams develop into the dark horse of the conference race. Don't misunderstand me, however, regarding the possibility of dark horses on the west coast. The University of Washington has that distinction without opposition.

Word drifts up from the south that Casey Bill Spaulding of the University of California, at Los Angeles, is concocting a brand new offense to bewilder rival coaches of the west this year. Told dazzling offense is to be built around Bill Chesire, claimed to be the most elusive, deceptive back the south has ever seen. Watch U. C. L. A.

Montana and the University of Idaho are undergoing a complete change of regime. Doug Fessenden, formerly of Chicago, is at Montana, and Ted Bank, formerly of Tulane, is at Idaho. I am in no position to hazard a guess on the standings this coming year, but it appears both institutions will be on the crest of a new wave of optimism that bears no good for their rivals.

Two Powerful Teams Outside the conference is the horse of two different colors—St.

STANFORD'S BACKFIELD—Stanford's Cardinals are picked to repeat as champions of the Pacific Coast conference. Here is the backfield, left to right, Paulman, Alustiza, Hamilton and Grayson.

Mary and Santa Clara have without doubt the strongest football teams in the history of their institutions. Not only are they extremely colorful, and strong with their first eleven, but capable reserves can be counted four and five deep for every position.

Leading the attack this year for St. Mary's will be that great triple-threat artist of last year, Herb Schriber, the blond terror.

Carrying the banner for Santa Clara are Thomas and De Rosa, the Gold Dust Twins, and "Friskey" Kaliski, a senior sensation.

Measuring the strength of teams by conference ratings, these two teams headed by Coaches "Slip" Madigan at St. Mary's and "Clipper" Smith at Santa Clara will be paralleling, if not overshadowing, the strongest that can be turned out by any of our universities.

In the far north, little Gonzaga with their mighty football aggregation under the leadership of Coach Mike Pecarovich, will be feared by larger adversaries. Gonzaga will have their heaviest and best team in years. A new star undoubtedly will shine in the Inland Empire out of this particular team, bearing the monicker "Cannonball" Karamatic, triple-threat artist de luxe.

San Francisco university is excited with the prospect of turning out its first real championship coach. Coach "Spud" Lewis has worked wonders building the football picture at the Golden Gate school and with a few breaks, this year should be the cause of many a headache among his opponent coaches.

Tom Lieb's Loyola Lions are always tricky and dangerous. Lieb has a bunch of stronger freshmen coming up this fall.

The grand old man of this coaching profession, Amos Alonzo Stagg, who upset the appellation in 1934, is in possession of the best material the College of Pacific has ever had.

ARMOUR-COOPER LEAD AMATEURS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Professionals Tommy Armour, and Harry Cooper, who were a bit embarrassed by amateurs Lawson Little of San Francisco and Johnny Goodman of Omaha in a special golf match last September, had exacted a full measure of revenge today.

The Chicago professionals beat the national amateur champion and the former open champion, 1 up, in an 18-hole exhibition match here yesterday.

Armour clinched the match by holing a 12 foot putt for a birdie three on the 18th green. Cooper

Terry to Retire As Ball Player

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Bill Terry, whose New York Giants lost two pennants in the last two years through late season collapses is determined to leave no stone unturned in rebuilding for 1936. It was in line with this determination today that caused Bill Terry, the manager, to announce the retirement of Bill Terry, the player.

Terry, who in his heyday as a first baseman was considered by many experts the peer of the immortal Hal Chase, confessed to newspaper reporters that he felt he was no longer able to do justice to his managerial activities while playing day in and day out through the heat of a hot campaign.

At the same time Terry took occasion to scotch rumors that Carl Hubbell, ace lefthander of the Giants, would be traded during the off-season.

The league leading Chicago Cubs brought to a close one of the most sensational home stands of all time when they blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-0, before 40,000 fans for their eighteenth consecutive victory. The game was a thrilling mound duel between Larry French of the Cubs and Cy Blanton of the Cubs. The Pirates out hit the Cubs, 9 to 7 but French was invincible in the pinches.

The St. Louis Cardinals cut the Cubs lead to three games by taking both ends of a doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds, 14-4, and 3-1. The Cards simply overpowered the Reds in the opener. Dizzy Dean registered his 28th victory in the nightcap.

OHIO FOE BEATS MARYSVILLE 11

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23.—The skippers of the Ohio State football ship today ordered full steam ahead in practices after watching Kentucky, first opponent for the Buckeyes, annihilate Marysville College Saturday by a convincing score of 60 to 0.

Headed by Coach Francis Schmid, a corps of Ohio mentors watched Chet Wynn's Kentuckians run roughshod over the lighter Tennessee eleven at Lexington, Ky.

Although Wynn's charges used only a few plays, Schmid and his assistant saw enough to give them a good working background in preparing a Buckeye defense against the Kentuckian's thrusts.

Had they desired, the Kentucky machine could have rolled up a count of over 100 points but Wynn chose to flood the field with a mass of second and third stringers, thus keeping the Lexington's eleven's scoring to only 60 points.

The Ohio States are expected to make special defense preparations for Bert Johnson and Bob Davis, the latter a sophomore halfback, who appear to be the big guns of Wynn's attack.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Between 100,000 and 105,000 people, the greatest crowd that ever saw prize fight or anything else in this suddenly berserk town, will witness the mixed heavyweight meeting between Max Baer and Joe Louis at the Yankee stadium tomorrow night.

The receipts will approach and perhaps top the almost incredible sum of $1,300,000. What else is to happen between now and the hour of eleven tomorrow night is something that only the gods can know, but the statements vouchsafed above are ordained. There was more than a million dollars in the safe as the promoters closed their doors last night.

Up in the fastnesses of Speculator and across the river at Pompton Lakes, the principals yesterday wound up all active training quietly and without undue incident, but down around fight headquarters madness reigned.

Surpasses Others

Nothing preceding the Dempsey-Carpenter fight equalled it. The Dempsey-Firpo fight produced a first class brawl outside the gates but the rampant day-before atmosphere was not so noticeable. Neither of the Dempsey-Tunney fights, rabid as they were, could or did show anything of the kind. Literally, there were tens of thousands running themselves breathless after something that long since had become non-existent. In a stadium, scaled to accommodate 91,650, there wasn't a reserved seat to be had two days ago.

By HYPE IGOE

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 23.—Joe Louis must be ready today, because he wished me to say so to Max Baer after he had finished doling up for the great lover.

Louis worked out in his methodical, phlegmatic, sullen way before people who seemed to sweep toward him like a tidal wave. He did nothing yesterday which could have been rated a workout, but when he finished there was such a cheer as I've never heard in a training camp in all my born years.

He must have been on edge because he dismissed newspapermen, silly interrogation and all, as if they had been "G" men snoopers. All my life I have wondered why supposedly smart chroniclers do as a man in condition before a million-dollar project: "How do you feel?" for a single lingering moment you don't ever hope to hear him say: "I feel like the wrath of God."

They say nothing of the kind. How could they? Louis, to my mind, is underestimating Max Baer. Nobody can be so cocksure of winning over a fellow never knocked down until this fight comes up on the morrow. Baer is a great fighter in spots. I've watched Louis mill at top speed and in important spots, and he has no part of Baer's fire.

SPECTACULAR N. Y., Sept. 23

Five rounds, no more, probably less. Max Baer figures it won't take any longer than that to finish Joe Louis tomorrow night in the Yankee stadium. And the Californian isn't shouting to keep up his courage.

Baer sat on the porch of his lodge here today resting and analyzing the battle. Early tomorrow morning, with Bill Cleveland at the controls, he soars up off Luke Pleasant and flies to New York for the weighing in rituals.

"I'm going to chase that Louis right on out of the ring down Riverside Drive," prophesied Baer. "This is a fight I've got to win and no inexperienced youngster is going to beat me. He hasn't encountered anything like an aroused Baer. I'll sweep him off his feet within five rounds."

LEGION CONVENTION OPENS Wise Dollars Have Multiplied by Being Spent in the Ads Below

VETS TO URGE SOVIET ACTION

Contest for Commander to Succeed Belgrano Draws Nine Candidates

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23.—Within half a mile of the spot where it was founded sixteen years ago, the American Legion today opened its seventeenth annual convention, determined to seek cash payment of the bonus for war veterans, press a fight against communism, demand withdrawal of American recognition of the Soviet republic because of communistic propaganda activities in this country.

That the convention will go on record for immediate payment of the bonus, for which it has fought for a decade, was a foregone conclusion as the opening session got under way.

Resolutions Voted
Forty-five of the 58 departments of the legion have already passed resolutions calling for immediate cash payment of the bonus with cancellation of accrued and refund of interest paid. Significant is the fact that none of the departmental instructions to delegates for cash bonus payment contains a reference to the method by which payment shall be made.

Taken in conjunction with the declaration of National Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr. in his annual report, that the bonus bill would have been approved during the last congressional session had it not contained a provision calling for currency expansion of inflation, experienced legion observers forswore a bonus fight that would sidestep any recommendation to congress for currency expansion.

A vigorous fight for adoption of resolutions calling for cancellation of American recognition of Russia and for combating communism in the United States was also indicated. Of the 736 proposed resolutions already dumped into the lap of the resolutions committee, more than a score dealt with these subjects, with large units of delegates forcefully demanding their adoption.

Registration early today was estimated at more than 50,000 and with legionnaires pouring into town by every train, plane, bus and on every highway, between 200,000 and 250,000 are expected to be on hand by tomorrow noon.

Nine in Contest
Of prime interest to most of the 50,000 legionnaires here for the first convention session was the spirited contest for the national commandship. Nine candidates have opened their campaigns to succeed Belgrano, with indications that by nightfall half this number will have withdrawn after a series of star chamber discussions, parleys and trades.

Announced candidates include Maurice F. Devine of New Hampshire, Vilas H. Whaley of Wisconsin, Frank D. Nash of Kentucky, J. Ray Murphy of Iowa, Daniel J. Doherty of Massachusetts, Quincy M. Elton of Georgia, Earl V. Cliff of Minnesota, Harry W. Colmery of Kansas, and William S. Pritchard of Alabama. The new commander will be named at the concluding session of the convention on Thursday.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

On her twenty-fourth birthday Carol Kennedy, coming into a vast fortune, suddenly announces to her relatives that she is giving up her old home in Connecticut, where she has lived as an orphan, to move to New York to find happiness and freedom. Among those attending Carol's birthday party are her cousin, Kathy Prentice, and her fiance, Dr. Owen Craig, whom she is marrying for social prestige. Unattractive Carol, who knows nothing of parties, pretty clothes and beaux, secretly admires Owen. Carol astounds her old nurse when she tells her of her plan. In New York Carol looks up Isabel Bronson, an old school chum now in the real estate business, to obtain help in finding an apartment. Isabel suggests a cocktail party and eagerly helps Carol purchase proper clothes for the occasion.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 5

IN THE ELEVATOR whirling them 20 stories above the street to Jean Stewart's cocktail party, Isabel Bronson powdered her velvety nose with a soft puff, touched her hair lightly and inspected herself carefully.

Carol Kennedy, thrilled with the adventure right down to the toes of her square-toed oxfords, pretended to follow suit. She dared not wet her lips for fear she would undo Isabel's work with the lipstick.

As the elevator rose, Carol's heart went down another bump. Why had she been such a little fool as to pretend she was a sophisticate? Isabel wouldn't care what she was and then she might have sat quietly in a corner.

Now she'd have to pretend she was someone she was not and she didn't know how to begin. She didn't know that all she had to do was to look, listen and say "yes" or "no" at the proper time.

What was a cocktail party like? Isabel had said she'd meet "New York's smart set"—a witty, charming, beautifully dressed and speaking like characters in a Noel Coward play. Carol thought fearfully.

The elevator door glided back silently and a wave of laughter greeted the two girls as they stepped into the narrow foyer. Laughter, the tinkle of glasses, high voices and blue smoke.

A tiny blonde detached herself from a group and came to meet them. "So sweet," so very sweet of you, Isabel, to come." It was Jean in black velvet pajamas, with platinum curls clinging to an alabaster cheek and eyes big and blue.

"An old college chum of mine, Carol Kennedy," Carol, our hostess, Jennie Stewart, star of what's called the wildest drama in New York," Isabel introduced them.

"I'm lots more wicked than the drama, Carol. Come in and have a cocktail this very minute. I've had one with each new arrival and now I'm beginning to like them myself. She slipped an arm through Carol's and led them to a table where a Russian musician and a pale chorus boy were engaged in a violent argument about something.

"Neither of you know what you're talking about," Jennie said to them. "Give Carol Kennedy a cocktail. This is Boris something (I can't pronounce his other name) and this gift to the theater answers to the name of Ogdin Pierson."

The three bowed to each other stiffly and Jennie left them. Boris gave Carol a cocktail. She slipped it with the air of a connoisseur and swallowing her dislike with her first sip of her first cocktail thought—how horrible! But aloud she said:

"Delicious, and the first I've had today." They felt she was accustomed to three before breakfast. Now there were more about the table. They talked to each other. They included Carol in their smiles but not in their conversation. Bits drifted to her.

"Connie was ad

"The first I've had today."

Ribbing when Bert comes along with the business. "I said to him reading a part is not playing a part." "Their collaboration was beautifully synchronized but it didn't produce very much." Why did they all laugh at that?

There was talk of someone flying from Hollywood. Carol wondered if it meant escaping from another scandal. Somebody's "piece" in the Mercury was torn to bits with criticism. She didn't understand it at all. It was a world she didn't know. No ready words of light conversation came to her. Her little smile grew wooden and she felt the lipstick congeal on her lips. Taking her almost untouched glass with her, she slipped away and found herself a seat on a leather cushion in a corner.

"Lonesome, sister," a tall young man, weaving ever so slightly and looking very much like Robert Montgomery, gave her a gentle shove and sat down beside her.

"Don't look so bored," he implored her earnestly. "Her wooden smile came back. 'I'm not bored really. I'm having a grand time.'"

"Honest?" He gave her his full attention. "How?"

Carol didn't know how to answer that so she said, "Tell me about yourself."

She didn't know that was the first line any woman should learn in the Art of Conversation with a Man.

He took her hand. "Nice long fingers," he murmured. "What's your name?"

"Carol Kennedy. What's yours?" "Reggie. Married, Carol?"

"No." She gulped the rest of the cocktail.

"Too bad," too bad," he shook his head dolefully. Conversation seemed to come to an end.

Carol made another try. "Tell me more about yourself."

"I am a failure," he said dramatically and drained his glass. "Gimme your glass and I'll be back in a jiffy. Don't go away."

"You really want to hear about me?" he asked when he came back. "I don't work. I hate work. Don't you?" He looked at her hopefully. "I... I don't know. I never have worked."

"Don't," he advised her. "It interferes with pleasure except there isn't pleasure any more." He was very sad.

"Work should be pleasure. It should be something to lose yourself in," she answered. Bits drifted to her.

He caught the serious note in her voice, looked hard at her and sighed. "Scuse me a moment." He rose. Carol was alone again. She didn't feel somehow and her mood of bright expectancy began to fade. Isabel was threading her way through the groups with a man in tow.

"Carol Kennedy, this is John Kirkland," she introduced them. "Carol was a wov in 'chem' at college. John. You two should have a lot in common." And with that she left them.

Carol said, "I wish Isabel would light somewhere. I have something important to talk over with her."

He laughed at that. "You'll have to catch her in her office, I fear." "I want her to help me find an apartment," Carol said.

"Are you a stranger in New York, Miss Kennedy?"

"Not so much in New York as I am to all this. This is my first cocktail."

She expected him to be surprised, possibly shocked. He reached over and took it from her hand. "Don't drink it and don't mind being stranger to this sort of thing. It has no meaning."

"Hast it?" She turned to him with quiet intensity. "The wine is happy. They're having fun. That's important."

"If they were, it might be but I don't think you'd have fun their way."

"Well, I mean to find out," she said with determination. "And I'm going to start by finding that apartment."

"Hello, John." It was a dapper young man who interrupted. "How are all the little test tubes today?" And after a pause—"Hope I didn't interrupt a twosome."

"Not at all," Kirkland was about to introduce them when he caught his eye and beckoned for him to join her. Excusing himself, he left Carol alone with the stranger.

"Did I hear you say something about wanting to rent an apartment?" he asked Carol who nodded.

"Then, look, let's get out of here and I'll tell you about a bargain. This place is giving me a headache. Get your gloves and we'll run around the corner for a real cocktail."

Her first invitation from a man! She said, "But I don't know who you are."

"Never let a little thing like that stop you. I'm Garry Crandall." The most fascinating man in New York, Isabel had said!

"Do we go?" he waited. "We do," she answered.

Then there are the "Eight Vanity Girls" who are perfect in their several difficult routines.

The "Broadway Vanities" will be at the Grand for two days only starting Wednesday and backed by Manager Baughman as a stage attraction to be enjoyed by women and children as well as the gentlemen.

The custom of shaving can be traced back to antiquity. The Egyptians commonly shaved except when in mourning.

"Broadway Vanities," produced and presented by the genial Russ Ferris, who also acts as master of ceremonies, boasts of the finest Broadway talent possible.

The show features in person "Chiquita" direct from the musical show, "Night in Spain," and introducing "The Caricoes" the sensational dance creation from the picture "Flying Down to Rio."

Chuck Wilson, the fat, fast and funny comedian, will keep the customers in laughs every minute he is on the stage, and it's no wonder judging from his past performances in such well known productions as "Take a Chance," and "Strike Me Pink," in which he was featured with many well known stars. Larry Forbes, the rhythm king of tap dancing, appears direct from the "Band Wagon" Sis and Bud McCall are from "Flying High."

The "Blue Flashes," Neville and Day, and Muriel Bandy, accomplished feats of adagio and acrobatic dancing unsurpassed on any stage. To further set off a highly entertaining show, the Ritz-Carlton orchestra will contribute a special medley of popular tunes.

Traffic Court

G. L. Haywood, Louisa, Ky., paid a fine of $25 and costs Saturday night to H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, for using fictitious auto tags. Haywood was arrested by Deputy Miller Fissell on Route 23 north of Circleville. The officer reported Haywood had purchased a truck in Cincinnati and had failed to have the license transferred. He was enroute to the lake district for fruit.

Local Briefs

Men's Club to Meet—After a lapse because of the summer season, the Men's club of the Methodist church will meet Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. in the church basement.

Fish Fry Success—The fish fry held in Tarlton Friday evening netted $248 profit. The affair will be conducted annually, it has been announced.

Elks Attend Confab—Three officers of the local Elks lodge, Glen Geib, exalted ruler; Leland Pontius, secretary, and Harry Bartholomew, esquire, attended a conference of lodge officials in Chillicothe Sunday afternoon. About 30 from the 16 lodges in the southern Ohio district attended. Robert Dunkle of Chillicothe, district deputy grand exalted ruler, was in charge. Short talks on activities of the various clubs and plans for the year were made.

TWO DRIVERS

len Price, Columbus, and others riding in it were: Ray Smith, Otto Moore, Carolyn Spars, and Lyda Trinner, all of Columbus.

E. B. Copeland, W. Moind-st, swerved his car to avoid striking the cars that collided, and blew out a front tire. Mr. Copeland was driving south.

Deputy Miller Fissell and two state patrolmen investigated the accident.

Older made arrangements to settle his fine.

Seven Persons Hurt In Auto Collision

Seven persons, five men and two women suffered minor cuts and bruises Sunday afternoon in an auto collision on Route 56, three miles north of Laureville.

The men were riding in a large Packard sedan, driven north by John Yezza, Cleveland. They were employed on a waterworks project in McArthur and were enroute to Columbus to a show.

The other car in the collision, a Chevrolet coupe, was being driven south by Ruth Horlacker, Dayton, and with her was Agnes Mertz, also of Dayton.

The right side of the Packard was crushed in and the front end of the Chevrolet was badly damaged. Dr. E. Hemmeger, Adelphi, treated those injured.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Earl Weaver investigated the accident. The Packard was taken to the G. L. Schlar garage and the Chevrolet to the Harden-Stevenson garage.

Yellowbud Youth Hit-Run Victim

Charles T. Zurmehly, 18, of Yellowbud, a member of the CCC, died Saturday after being struck by a hit-skip motorist on Rt. 50 west of Ratcliffburg, Ross-co.

His skull was fractured and his left side crushed.

His parents are both dead and he has been making his home with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Hafe Murphy of Yellowbud. The funeral was Monday morning.

Three sisters, Claire of New Holland, Jean of Chillicothe, and Naomi of Yellowbud, survive.

FOUR KILLED IN WEEK-END TRAFFIC

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23—Four week-end traffic deaths were counted in this area today, while a dozen other persons were hurt.

Earl Ballinger, 45, and Arthur Justice, 42, were pitched to the street and fatally injured when a truck bearing the Volunteers of America baseball team and rooters to London for a game at the prison farm, hit a rough stretch of road.

The chain supporting the endgate snapped, Harry Daniels, 39, and Thomas Lumpkin, 63, were seriously hurt in the same accident. The men, guests of the Volunteers, were homeless.

An auto driven by John Halliday killed Frank Windom, 47. The motorist said the lights of another car blinded him and he did not see Windom, who was pushing a junk cart.

The fourth fatality occurred in Delaware, with Edward Ewers, 48, Barborton, the victim. Police exonerated the driver, Dr. M. S. Cherington.

BARRYMORE'S HOPES ENDED BY HIS WIFE

No Reconciliation Possible, Says the Former Dolores Costello of Husband

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23—John Barrymore, great lover of the stage and screen, may expect to continue as the husband of Dolores Costello, his beautiful estranged wife, as reported from Gallup, N. M., but Miss Costello has an entirely different idea, she revealed today.

Emerging temporarily from her rigidly maintained seclusion the mother of Barrymore's two children emphatically declared there would be no reconciliation, adding she expected to obtain her divorce in ten days.

"There is no possibility of a reconciliation under any circumstances," Miss Costello declared.

While the world watched with amused interest the strange hide-and-seek game which Barrymore played with his 19-year-old protegee, Elaine Barrie, Miss Costello let it be known she had no interest in the affair. In fact, she claimed to know nothing whatsoever about it.

The first mail on the American continent started from New York for Boston, Jan. 1, 1673.

AGE PENSION

between Mr. Berroddin and the Lorain-co board which sought to add another worker to the staff in that county.

Again the report charges, "that administrative staffs both in state and county have in general been persons of very limited education, that the civil service has been evaded and defeated, and that the head of the division of aid for the aged has usurped authority belonging to local boards."

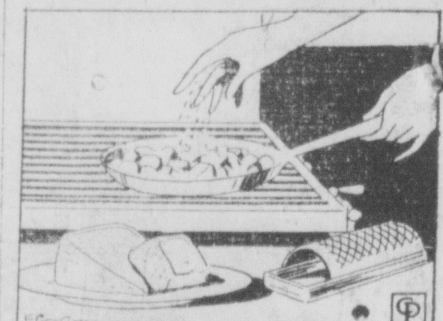

Administration Hit

The survey points out that the state of New York, which has almost twice the population of Ohio spends less for pensions than this state. The blame for this situation is placed upon faulty administration, "careless and ignorant methods of work resulting in duplication of relief, and failure to follow up cases to discover and utilize other resources for recipients which would make aid for the aged awards unnecessary."

More careful and selective methods of awarding payments could reduce the pension list by 22,000, the report charged.

TWO DRIVERS FACE CHARGES AFTER WRECK

Grand Jury to Study Reckless Driving Complaints; Mrs. Groom Hurt

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Counter-Charges Filed in Cady's Court Today

Charges of reckless driving have been preferred against the drivers of an auto and truck involved in a collision Saturday evening at Mingo and Main-sts, in which Mrs. Samuel F. Groom, S. Washington-st., suffered two fractured ribs and bruises.

Herbert Baugh, Rt. 7, Springfield, driver of the truck, denied a charge of reckless driving filed by Mr. Groom, and a charge of operating a truck without a chauffeur's license filed by Miller Fissell, deputy sheriff, before Mayor W. B. Cady, Monday morning. His cases were transferred to common pleas court and bond fixed at $300.

Denial Entered
Mr. Groom denied a charge of reckless driving filed by C. S. Baugh, father of the truck driver, and he was released on his own recognizance after his case was transferred to common pleas court.

Mr. and Mrs. Groom were going from the Lancaster pike into Mingo-st, when their car was struck by a truck hauling coal west on Route 56 and driven by Herbert Baugh, 19. The Groom car was badly damaged and pushed against the curb. The front of the truck was damaged and coal was spilled over the intersection.

Mrs. Groom was unconscious for a short time after the collision but asked to be taken to her home instead of the hospital. She is under the care of Dr. C. W. Heffner.

Baugh gave bond of $55 in police court for his appearance this morning on the charges.

Insufficient Lighting Causes Car Wreck

William Oker, Columbus, was fined $15 and costs Monday morning by H. O. Evelyn, justice of peace, on an insufficient light charge resulting from an auto collision on Route 23, Sunday night, in which one person was injured.

Lorraine Chapman, Columbus, sustained a bruised back when a Ford roadster in which she was riding collided with Oker's parked car about one mile north of Bloomfield. Dr. R. S. Hooper, Ashville treated her injuries. The roadster was driven north by Al.

COUNTY GIRL, 14, TYPHOID VICTIM

Ruth, 14-year-old daughter of Harry Zimmerman, Atlanta, passed away at 10 p. m. Saturday at Chillicothe City hospital. Typhoid fever caused his demise.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon with burial in Garfield cemetery, Fayette-co, by C. E. Hill.

Miss Zimmerman was born in New Holland Feb. 4, 1921, a daughter of Harry and Alma Watson Zimmerman. Her mother died in 1922.

The following brothers and sisters survive in addition to the father, Glenn, Grace, Opal, Hazel, Gladys, Dorothy, Paul and Robert, all at home.

SENATOR GRAVE

MOSCOW, Sept. 23. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois was still suffering today from bronchial pneumonia and physicians said his condition, though grave, was unchanged.

The senator's entire right side is affected by the illness. He has been ill since he crossed the Soviet border Friday, Sept. 13.

CATTLE THIEVES BUSY IN DISTRICT

Five head of Hereford cattle weighing about 600 pounds each and a red steer weighing about 1000 pounds were stolen Saturday night from a farm of Frank Buzard near Amanda, according to a report given to Sheriff Charles Radloff Sunday night by Lancaster authorities.

ARMY AIRMAN CROSSES SEA

Waitkus Plans to Continue Journey to Lithuania Despite Accident

DUBLIN, Sept. 23. With or without his plane damaged in landing after a 22-hour flight from New York, during which he came at least once perilously close to death — Felix Waitkus, United States army pilot, planned today to continue to Kovno (Kaunas), Lithuania, as soon as possible.

His Lockheed-Vega machine, which he flew blind through rain and fog most of the way, rested on a hillside near Ballinrobe, county Mayo, one wing smashed, the propeller buckled, and the undercarriage torn away. It will be brought to Dublin airport, but may prove beyond repairing.

A lowering gasoline supply forced Waitkus to end his projected non-stop flight to Lithuania, he said, revealing that once during the trip a frozen carburetor forced his steadily down towards the misty water, but that he was able to meet the ice in time.

"During the whole flight, I never had a glimpse of water," said the tired, 28-year-old flier. "The last land I saw was Nova Scotia as the mist through which he flew all the way across the Atlantic was encountered over Newfoundland."

Lady Mary Heath, aviation enthusiast, flew from Dublin to fetch Waitkus, but her own plane was damaged in landing at Ballinrobe.

The young Wisconsin airman said he would continue by boat and rail, if necessary, since his journey to Lithuania was sponsored as a good-will mission.

DRUNKS AGAIN KEEP CADDY'S COURT BUSY

Noah Skaggs, 27, Portsmouth, arrested by police Saturday night, was fined $25 and costs for being drunk and disorderly, and ordered to the county jail, by Mayor Cady in police court Monday morning.

James E. Dearth, city, posted $5 bond for his appearance in police court at 7:30 o'clock tonight on an intoxication charge. S. E. Cady, Circleville R. P. D., forfeited $5 bond posted on a drunk and disorderly charge. George Schrock, Circleville R. P. D., forfeited a similar bond. Charles Grubbs, Circleville, R. P. D., posted a $3 bond for his appearance for intoxication.

Five persons arrested for intoxication Saturday night were released by Mayor Cady after receiving lectures.

ACTIVITY IN MOTOR CITY REACHES PEAK

DETROIT, Sept. 23. Automobile trade news today.

Unusual activity developed in the industry as the date for its "new year" was officially set. The future of the trade along the pacemaker for recovery was described as "particularly bright."

Developments included:

A fleet of $2,300,000 worth of new automobiles will leave Detroit tomorrow in the largest "drive-away" in the history of the industry.

Predictions by Alvan Macaulay and M. M. Cullinan, president and vice-president of Packard, that the future of the industry was "particularly bright."

FDR to Confer

Effort to Retain Peace in Industry Ends With Lewis' Order

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. Four hundred thousand bituminous coal miners were under strike orders today.

"The order to quit the mines last night was sent out to all the union locals by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, when the long conference here between representatives of the operators and the union failed to reach an agreement on a new working contract."

This was the situation that confronted President Roosevelt when he returned this morning from Hyde park.

Look to President

Both sides are looking to him to lead the way to an amicable settlement and to end the strike. He is expected to call representatives of both groups before him during the day.

The present working contract of the miners expired last midnight after it had been extended five times since March 31—on the personal appeal of Mr. Roosevelt. The union is demanding a 10 per cent wage increase and shorter hours.

At the very minute the strike order became effective a committee of operators and miners was working furiously in a hotel here in an effort to reach an agreement. After being in session most of Sunday and last night the committee broke up at 3 a. m. today without reporting an agreement. It will meet again during the morning and report to the full conference committee at 2 p. m.

When the weary-eyed and fatigued delegates emerged from their virtual all night wrangle it was evident that neither side would yield to substantial concessions and that they intend to "fight it out and stand by their rights."

McGrady Present

This situation developed despite the presence at the conference of Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, as President Roosevelt's special representative. He was given full authority to speak for the national administration and to do all within his power to prevent a great strike.

McGrady, who was in contact with the president over the telephone throughout the day, appealed to the operators and miners to prevent the walkout.

"It is indefensible," he said, "to allow this strike to start over a couple of pennies. The strike would cause untold suffering to 2,500,000 persons in the families of miners. The American people will never stand for it. In the name of almighty God, don't let this strike occur over a few pennies."

He got his phrase of "a few pennies" from Philip Murray, vice president of the union, who said the increase sought by the miners would cost only about $16,000 a day and would help consumer prices only a few pennies a ton.

TO GET WORK ON HIGHWAY PROJECT

Ten additional local men were given employment Monday morning by the state highway department on the improvement of Route 104 from the Ross-co line north 13.26 miles.

The huge road laying machine of T. D. Van Camp, Columbus, awarded the contract, was put in operation Monday. The machine mixes the resurfacing material, lays and tamps it. The machines averages about a half mile a day, the highway department reported.

TURNERY LEIST ALIVE AND WELL, HE SAYS

A report that Turnery Leist, well known Washington-Twp. farmer, was killed by an automobile Saturday night was termed false today by none other than Mr. Leist himself.

"If I'm dead I don't know anything about it," the report was declared when a reporter called his residence to obtain his story.

PEACE PARLEY NEARS CLOSE; REPORT CLASH

League Committee of Five Turns Down Italian Suggestions

CLAIM TROOPS DEAD

Ethiopians Approve Geneva's Peace Plan

By International News Service

A show-down between Italy and the League of Nations appeared imminent today as the Ethiopian crisis reached a new impasse with Rome awaiting new peace suggestions from Geneva, while league officials turned their thoughts toward possible sanctions. Important developments were:

GENEVA — The committee of five turned thumbs down on Italy's demands in Ethiopia and confirmed that conciliation attempts had broken down, bringing league face to face with the question of sanctions.

ROME — While Italy awaited new peace proposals, King George of England and King Victor Emanuel of Italy were credited in unconfirmed reports for an exchange of assurances between the two nations that naval and air concentrations in the Mediterranean were without aggressive intent.

BRITISH TO STRENGTHEN
LONDON — Political circles expressed conviction British cabinet has decided to strengthen defensive forces.

ADDIS ABABA — H. R. Knickerbocker states the Ethiopian government is pleased with Mussolini's rejection of the league peace proposals, enabling Ethiopia to accept in principle a peace plan which actually might cause civil war in the African empire. A clash between Ethiopians and Italian Somali troops was reported at Gerlogubi.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 23.—Unconfirmed reports reached here today of disturbances at Gerlogubi between Ethiopian and native Italian Somali troops in which several were killed.

Deserted Italians
The Somalis, according to the reports, had deserted from the Italian side to serve Ethiopia some weeks ago, but recently caused trouble.

Ethiopians ordered them to give up their rifles, and the Somalis refused, according to the reports. The clash ensued.

Gerlogubi is in southeastern Ethiopia not far from the Italian Somali border.

WHITE JOINS RACE FOR CONGRESS JOB

The lid was pried off the Republican side of the contest for congress from the 11th Ohio district during the week-end when Tom P. White, Fairfield, comedian, tossed his hat into the arena.

White ran a losing race against Renick W. Dunlap in 1934 losing the nomination although he carried three of the five counties. Dunlap's margin in Pickaway and Ross-co was too much for White to overcome in Fairfield, Perry and Hocking.

The only other person definitely in the race is Harry Widen of Rockbridge, who lost to Congressman Mell G. Underwood in the Democratic primary.

HOOPER, FAMOUS ACTOR, IS DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 23. DeWolf Hooper, famous stage and light opera star, and Lancaster's light opera star, died at St. Luke's hospital here today.

He was 77 years old.

His death was attributed to heart trouble.

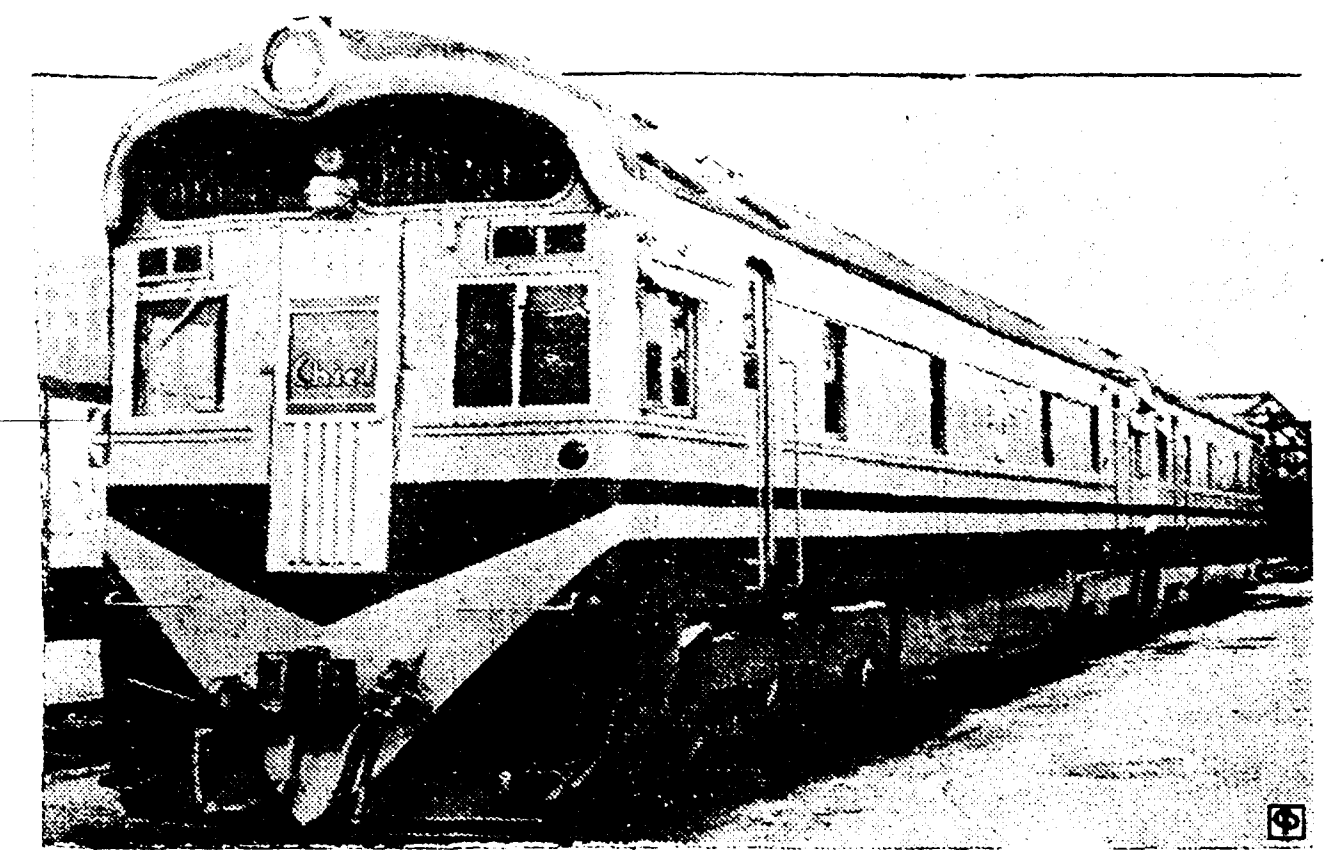

Hooper completed a tour of the United States over a National Broadcasting chain yesterday afternoon. Two radio station officials believed him ill and called a doctor.

FIRST MALE STUDENT IN ECONOMICS CLASS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 23.—William G. Slocum, a freshman at Pennsylvania state college, today became the first male student ever to enroll in the college's home economics course.

Slocum, whose home is in Taylor, Pa., plans a career in hotel management. Heretofore, about 270 girls, but no boys, have majored in home economics annually at state college.

Most Costly Locomotive Ever Built to Cut Time

New Santa Fe Diesel locomotive

Tests prove this new Diesel locomotive of the Santa Fe railroad will cut the running time from Chicago to Los Angeles by a day. Speed up to 110 miles with a 11-car standard-weight Pullman train was recorded, but average running speed of course will be much less. The new locomotive, which has 3,600 horsepower and weighs 240 tons, cost $360,000, thus is the most expensive locomotive ever built. Its maintenance and operating costs, however, are expected to save a considerable sum. This type locomotive will haul a faster section of the road's noted train, "The Chief," the new train to be called, "The Super Chief." Present running time between two cities is 53 hours, 45 minutes.

AGE PENSION SET-UP IS HIT

Sherrill Committee Discloses Berroddin Usurping Power of County Boards

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23.—A serious indictment of the administration of old age pensions in Ohio, coupled with charges that the "head of the division of aid for the aged has usurped authority belonging to local county boards," was brought against the division today by the Sherrill Committee.

In a report, bristling with criticism of the conduct of Ohio's old age pension department, the Ohio Government survey pointed out that more economical management, elimination of "hasty, inadequate and political methods of investigation," could save the state $3,400,000 annually.

This amount could be saved, the Sherrill group asserts, despite recommendations that more employees be hired to investigate cases, and salaries be raised "to obtain better qualified people for the work."

AGED WOMAN PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Amanda Reber, 85, Dies in East Ringgold; Funeral is Private

Mrs. Amanda Reber, aged 85, died Saturday evening at her home in East Ringgold of infirmities. She was a daughter of Benjamin and Minerva Ashbrook Dunnick, Pickaway-co pioneers.

Her husband, Henry Reber, preceded her in death.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lyman May of Ashville, and a son, V. T. Reber of Kenton, in addition to six grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

The body will be removed to the home of Mrs. May where private services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Hanover in charge. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Son.

HUNGRY THIEVES INVADE MOORE'S

A hungry gang of thieves entered the John Moore restaurant, E. Ohio-st., Sunday night for their evening meal.

They devoured a large ham, part of a brick of cheese, drank beer and took candy, chewing gum, cigarettes and smoking tobacco of an estimated value of $15. They obtained no money, Mr. Moore stated, as no change was left in the restaurant.

Entrance was made by prying open a rear window. Before leaving they spilled a basket of onions on the floor.

SHERIFF WARNS OF BAD CHECKS

Sheriff Charles Radloff issued a warning to local merchants Monday morning urging them to keep a close lookout for "bad checks." He explained about every year, during the corn-cutting season, he receives numerous calls concerning worthless checks.

CHOIR SINGER GOES ON TRAGEDY TRIAL

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 23. Vandalized by fire from a village church near the shadow of the electric chair, Newell Paige Sherman, 26, Sutton Scoutmaster and "moral" youth, today begins a desperate fight for his life for the "American tragedy" drowning of pretty Alice Dudley Sherman, 22, his wife and mother of his two babies.

It is the nation's third American tragedy trial. It is the second since Theodore Dreiser's classic book of the last tag of "American Tragedy" on a brutal and peevishly erotic type of murder—the number of a woman by a man so that the man might woo another woman.

RED MEN HEAR LAWYER LAUD LOGAN SPEECH

400 Attend Indian Day Festivities Under Elm; Redfern is Speaker

"The speech of the great Chief Logan given on the grounds on which you are now standing will always live with the world as a great classic and is comparable in many ways with Lincoln's Gettysburg address," Attorney E. F. Redfern, Adelphi, told a crowd of 400 persons Sunday at the Indian Day celebration at Logan Elm Park.

"Both of the speeches were given without long preparation, they are both brief and to the point," Mr. Redfern explained. The attorney gave a brief outline of historical events including the Boston tea party and the life of Pocahontas, both of which have significance in the lodge work of the Improved Order of Red Men and the Degree of Pocahontas.

Explains Locations
In his address he explained the location of the Indian villages known in Pickaway-co, namely the camps of Cornstalk, Logan and the Grenier Squaw. The speaker termed Congo as the "highway of the local Indian nation."

The Indian Day celebration was the first event of its kind held.

McLean (1745-1861), and Mellett (1858-1926), Canton News who were assassinated during his drive on Canton's underworld, were elected from five nominees. A two-thirds vote of 70 judges are necessary for election.

The two will be paid tribute at the annual Hall of Fame dinner Friday, Nov. 15, at the university.

STATE AGENTS ARREST FOUR; 3 GO TO JAIL

Fourth Denies Charge, to Be Tried Before Judge Adkins, Saturday

FIND ILLICIT BOOZE

John Ferguson Assessed $500 on Charges

Three Circleville men have received heavy fines in common pleas court as the result of a series of raids conducted over the week end by state officers, and the case of a fourth man has been tentatively set for next Saturday.

John Ferguson, 55, Lancaster pike, was assessed fines totalling $500 and costs for possession of liquor for sale without a permit and selling without a license. Ferguson was fined $250 on each charge and ordered to the county jail.

Scott, Irvin Fined
Roland Scott, 43, W. Main-st., was fined $150 and costs for illegal possession and Palestine Irvin, 53, colored, E. Ohio-st., was fined $100 and costs on a similar charge. Both were ordered to the county jail until the fine was paid.

J. C. Costlow, 71, S. Washington-st., denied illegal possession and his case has been tentatively set for next Saturday. His bond was fixed at $200 by Judge Adkins. Costlow is arranging to furnish bond. Attorney C. A. Lett represents Mr. Costlow.

The state agents in charge reported small quantities of liquor were found in the raids. One raid was conducted Friday and three others Saturday night.

ELECTRICITY HITS WORKER

Glenn Hartman, Columbus, Hurt As Crane Hits Wires

Glenn Hartman, 25, of Fourth-ave, Columbus, an employee of the state highway department, was seriously but with a chance to recover after being nearly electrocuted on Route 104, southwest of Circleville, Monday afternoon. He was brought to Berger hospital.

He was working on the Route 104 improvement when the crane chain swinging through the air, came in contact with high tension wires. Hartman was holding the chain in a ravine when the contact was made. His arms and legs were badly burned.

Dr. E. L. Montgomery was called and was administering aid this afternoon.

The accident happened about one-quarter of a mile south of the Wayne-twp school. The call for aid was sent over the school's telephone.

Hartman is unharmed.

ALLEN FLOYD SENT TO STATE'S PRISON

For violation of a parole granted Sept. 6 on an indictment for passing a worthless check, Allen Floyd, Tarlton, was sentenced to from one to three years in the Ohio penitentiary Monday noon by Judge J. W. Adkins in common pleas court.

Floyd was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong and Miller Russell Saturday afternoon in Tarlton for intoxication.

PATTERN 5444

Let your linens express your personality—be individual! Mark them with single initials or monograms in this distinctive design. You can do them in cutwork or satin stitch. Or combine both in a monogram to make a rich decoration! In doing cutwork, the background can be cut away or the initial cut out after bars have been formed. Three different effects in cutwork are explained in the detailed directions. Do your initials in color if you like—the smartest shops are showing this.

In pattern 5444 you will find a transfer pattern of three complete alphabets, one 2 1/2 inch, one 1 1/2 inch and one 3/4 inch (the dimension indicates the size of the letter); information on the correct placing of initials; illustrations of all stitches needed; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, Ohio.

Poems That Live

QUIET WORK

One lesson, Nature, let me learn of thee,

One lesson which in every wind is blown,

One lesson of two duties kept at one

Though the loud world proclaim their enmity—

Of toil unsevered from tranquility; Of labor, that in lasting fruit outgrows

Far noisier schemes, accomplished in repose,

Too great for haste, too high for rivalry.

Yes, while on earth a thousand discords ring,

Man's fitful uproar mingling with his toil,

Still do thy sleepless ministers move on,

Their glorious tasks in silence perfecting;

Still working, blaming still our vain turmoil;

Laborers that shall not fail when man is gone.

Old Friend Meditates On Medical Progress

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHAT YOU were telling yesterday about the fellow with the heart trouble, and about the electrocardiograph, having reached the age of consent, or maturity, or whatever it has arrived at, remarked my old friend,

Dr. Adrian Gibbs, meditatively, as he sampled the new medicine for arthritis the detail man had just left, "reminds me of how irregular the progress of medical science really is."

"G r o s s e s, all right," he agreed, after my horrified protest, "but at a terrific waste of human energy, and what is often naively called clinical observation."

"Which means just the opposite of what is usually said—you can't try it out on the dog. If you could only come to conclusions in the laboratory you'd be all right. But unfortunately we're human doctors, and dogs can't talk, and the only way we can make any progress is to try out this, and the other that more likely than not some kid waiting for a practice has thought up."

"Medical SCIENCE progresses, all right. It's when we say to each other, 'Well, the kid is right, he's smarter than he sounds, what he said really is so'—that medical science progresses."

"Trouble is, what happens most of the time is that after some disease, or method, has been proposed, we keep on using it when we know in our hearts it's no good because Dr. Jones is still monkeying with it, and then some really smart guy shouts—'The darn thing is bunk'—and then we quit it. But that ain't progress. That is what is called by the inventor of the method—iconoclasm or destructive criticism."

"You know," he continued, reflectively, throwing the arthritis sample into the waste basket, "I have been in practice so long and been through so many whirlwinds of fashion, that I have changed my mind as often as a brain truster."

"I remember when constitutional inadequacy used to be called visceropneumonia, and nephrosis was just plain chronic parenchymatous nephritis."

"There are fashions in drugs. Long time ago it was all strychnine. Old Dorskluck up there, the apothecary, has got his shelves filled with strychnine waiting for a bull market. Aspirin is the thing today. I use just as much of it as I used to use strychnine, and it's a better drug, I guess. I believe that's progress."

"I remember when they used to anchor kidneys—not only the floating ones, but also the ones that were a little loose. It cured—now let's see—headache, lumbago, neurasthenia, uric acid, diathesis, laziness, spots before the eyes, and hemoglobinuria. It was mostly performed on the upper classes, though. Delicate operations seldom reach the poor. Maybe that is why there are so many of them."

"You know the pioneer surgeons have a lot to answer for. That Lawson Tait, way back in the eighties, who used to remove gizzards by the barrel, just because they had little cysts on them. Think of the human suffering he caused. The medical profession got over it, though."

"Yes," he said, in answer to my protest, "it is hard on the victims. Reminds me of what a guide did to me in Italy once when I remarked that they didn't seem to have many monuments to doctors. He took me to a cemetery."

"But we progress. Ain't you glad you're not living in the floating kidney era of surgery?"

"Progress," he mused, as he fished the arthritis sample back out of the waste basket.

here under direction of the lodge and auxiliary. The groups plan to make the event an annual affair.

An invitation to the lodge to hold its 1936 convention in Circleville was extended by Fred C. Clark, representing local citizen in a welcoming address to the group. "The lodge could select no more fitting environs for its encampment," he stated.

Rev. T. C. Harper, pastor of the United Brethren church, gave the invocation, and A. F. Hatch, Athens, great Sachem of Ohio, gave the selection "Our Flag."

Presents Logan Speech

Laurence Cameron, Columbus, who has studied Indian dialect of a number of reservations, presented Logan's speech as he believed it was given by the chief.

Venus Schwab, Leola council No. 1, Dayton, recited parts of the poem Hiawatha, dealing with the origin of the Indian peace pipe.

Members of the local tribe in full regalia presented a pantomime showing Indian council customs. Wigwams were erected on the grounds for the occasion.

The musical program was presented by the Circleville High school band and members of Howard Hall post, American Legion, were in charge of auto parking.

State officers attending the celebration included: Mr. Hatch; Fred Newhouse, Toledo, great chief of records; M. V. Clevenger, Columbus, great prophet; George C. Stebleton, Lancaster, member of orpian's home board; E. C. Wilcox, Dayton, past great Sachem; Ralph Bins, Springfield, great Mashinewa; Clarence Runck, Dayton, great Sannap, Maybelle Gamble, Van Wert, great Pocahontas; Ida Bins, Springfield, great Winonah; Nellie Mae Curtis, Troy, great prophetess; Ruth Yanis, Troy, member of orpian's board; and Nora Timbleton, Van Wert, past great Pocahontas.

L. E. Miller, Watt-st, past great Sachem, introduced the speakers and presented the state officers.

A basket picnic was held on the grounds at noon.

About This And That In Many Sports

DAVEY WANTS FIFTY
The honorable Martin L. Davey, governor of Ohio, has requested 50 football tickets for each game played at Ohio State university this fall, we are told, were not Mr. Davey and Mr. Rightmire, president of the school, at odds, the governor might ask for one whole side of the field, who knows?—Anyway our reply to Mr. Davey's request for the 50 tickets, if it is true, would be a pair of seats behind some post.

FOX-COON DAY SHOW
The sixth annual fox and soon dog field trials of the Ross-co conservation league will be held Sunday, Sept. 29, on Rt. 277, 10 miles north of Chillicothe. A wild fox chase starts at 5 a. m. with coon dog trials at 10. Entry fees are charged with cash prizes to winning dogs—A number of Pick-away counties are expected to participate.

WHO DO YOU LIKE?
There'll be a lot of money bet on the Baer-Louis fight tomorrow night and there are a lot of conflicting opinions. Today Edward Neil, sports editor for AP, picked Baer while Dave Walsh, INS sports chief, put his O. K. on Louis a week ago—Anyway it will be a great fight and a million-dollar gate.

A WINNING CUB

LANDRUM MAY USE JENKINS AT FULLBACK

Griffith's Injury Forces Back-field Revision; Hard Drills Planned

It seemed almost certain today that Johnny Griffith, big Tiger backfield man, would be out of football for at least another week because of his shoulder injury, so Coach Jack Landrum intended to try to make Johnny Jenkins a ball carrier.

Griffith, after intercepting a pass and running it back to mid-field against Groveport last Friday in the Tigers' first victory in three years, was thrown hard on a shoulder he injured in an earlier practice. The shoulder was taped tightly today and Griffith's doctor told him "no soap" for football for a little while.

Appeared At End
Jenkins, prior to the Groveport game, had been in only two practice sessions. He looked pretty good at an end, so Landrum, starting this evening, planned to see what he could do in the back-field.

That that Dave Jackson, who played a neat game against Groveport, might have a broken wrist was alleviated when his dad, Doctor H. D., reported the wrist was only sprained. Jackson was expected to be in uniform tonight for another drill.

While Will Friley used only a few offensive plays against Groveport, there are a lot more in the little blue book, so the Red and Black mentor is expected to give him orders to spring a few against Holy Rosary Friday. The Irish team from Columbus has the best aggregation in the school's history and will come here hoping for a big victory. Coach Landrum's boys are also hoping to continue their winning and stop the long streak of the Columbusites.

Blocking-Tackling
Every man on the squad is to get a lot of blocking and tackling practice this week. By smoothing up these departments and producing some kind of an electric spark to get his linemen off their haunches and driving to move the opposing line, Landrum hopes to have his squad all primed for Rosary.

One youth who is to get a lot of work this week is Red Huff, whose kick-offs against Groveport were not so hot. Huff, however, had been practicing his kick-off only one night. The fact that the game was the first of the year also cut into his efficiency as a "kicker-offer."

While last Friday's crowd was a large one, much bigger than any of last season, the throng expected to attend this week's game is even larger.

LEGION CONVENTION OPENS

VETS TO URGE SOVIET ACTION

Contest for Commander to Succeed Belgrano Draws Nine Candidates

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23.—Within half a mile of the spot where it was founded sixteen years ago, the American Legion today opened its seventeenth annual convention, determined to seek cash payment of the bonus for war veterans, press a fight against communism, demand withdrawal of American recognition of the Soviet republic because of communist propaganda activities in this country.

That the convention will go on record for immediate payment of the bonus, for which it has fought for a decade, was a foregone conclusion as the opening session got under way.

Resolutions Voted

Forty-five of the 55 departments of the legion have already passed resolutions calling for immediate cash payment of the bonus with cancellation of accrued and refund of interest paid. Significant is the fact that none of the departmental instructions to delegates for cash bonus payment contains a reference to the method by which payment shall be made.

Taken in conjunction with the declaration of National Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr. in his annual report, that the bonus bill would have been approved during the last congressional session had it not contained a provision calling for currency expansion of inflation, experienced legion observers forswore a bonus fight that would sidestep any recommendation to congress for currency expansion.

A vigorous fight for adoption of resolutions calling for cancellation of American recognition of Russia and for combating communism in the United States was also indicated. Of the 736 proposed resolutions already dumped into the lap of the resolutions committee, more than a score dealt with these subjects, with large units of delegates forcefully demanding their adoption.

Registration, early today was estimated at more than 50,000 and with legionnaires pouring into town by every train, plane, bus and on every highway, between 200,000 and 250,000 are expected to be on hand by tomorrow noon.

Nine in Contest

Of prime interest to most of the 50,000 legionnaires here for the first convention session was the spirited contest for the national commandship. Nine candidates have opened their campaigns to succeed Belgrano, with indications that by tonight half this number will have withdrawn after a series of star chamber discussions, parleys and trades.

Announced candidates include Maurice F. Devine of New Hampshire, Vilas H. Whaley of Wisconsin, Frank D. Nash of Kentucky, J. Ray Murphy of Iowa, Daniel J. Doherty of Massachusetts, Quimby M. Elton of Georgia, Earl V. Cliff of Minnesota, Harry W. Colmery of Kansas, and William S. Pritchard of Alabama. The new commander will be named at the concluding session of the convention on Thursday.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

On her twenty-fourth birthday, Carol Kennedy, coming into a vast fortune, suddenly announces to her relatives that she is giving up her old home in Connecticut, where she has lived as an orphan, to move to New York to find happiness and freedom. Among those attending Carol's birthday party are her cousin, Kathy Prentice, and her fiance, Dr. Owen Craig, whom she is marrying for social prestige. Unintentionally, Carol, who knows nothing of parties, pretty clothes and houses, sees the admirers there. Carol abandons her old name when she tells her of her plan. In New York Carol looks up Isabel Bronson, an old school chum now in the real estate business, to obtain help in finding an apartment. Isabel suggests a cocktail party and Carol helps Carol purchase proper clothes for the occasion.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 5

IN THE ELEVATOR whirling them 20 stories above the street to Jean Stewart's cocktail party, Isabel Bronson powdered her velvety nose with a soft puff, touched her hair lightly and inspected herself carefully.

Carol Kennedy, thrilled with the adventure right down to the toes of her square-toed oxfords, pretended to follow suit. She dared not wet her lips for fear she would undo Isabel's work with the lipstick.

As the elevator rose, Carol's heart went down another bump. Why had she been such a little fool as to pretend she was a sophisticate? Isabel wouldn't care what she was and then she might have sat quietly in a corner.

Now she'd have to pretend she was someone she was not and she didn't know how to begin. She didn't know that all she had to do was to look, listen and say "yes" or "no" at the proper time.

What was a cocktail party like? Isabel had said she'd meet "New York's smart set," a witty, charming, beautifully dressed and speaking like characters in a Noel Coward play. Carol thought fearfully.

The elevator door glided back silently and a wave of laughter greeted the two girls as they stepped into the narrow foyer. Laughter, the tinkle of glasses, high voices and blue smoke.

A tiny blonde detached herself from a group and came to meet them. "So sweet," so very sweet of you, Isabel, to come." It was Jean in black velvet pajamas, with platinum curls clinging to an alabaster cheek and eyes big and blue.

"An old college chum of mine, Carol Kennedy," Carol, our hostess, Jeanine Stewart, star of what's called the wickedest drama in New York," Isabel introduced them.

"I'm lots more wicked than the drama, Carol. Come in and have a cocktail this very minute. I've had one with each new arrival and now I'm beginning to like them myself." She slipped an arm through Carol's and led them to a table where a Russian musician and a pale chorus boy were engaged in a violent argument about something.

"Neither of you know what you're talking about," Jeanine said to them. "Give Carol Kennedy a cocktail. This is Boris something (I can't pronounce his other name) and this is Boris, a Russian musician and a pale chorus boy were engaged in a violent argument about something.

"The first I've had today."

blinking when Bert comes along with the business. "I said to him, 'I'm not playing a part'." "Their collaboration was beautifully synchronized but it didn't produce very much." Why did they all laugh at that?

There was talk of someone flying from Hollywood. Carol wondered if it meant escaping from another scandal. Somebody's "piece" in the Mercury was torn to bits with criticism. She didn't understand it at all. It was a world she didn't know. No ready words of light conversation came to her. Her little smile grew wooden and she felt the lipstick crack on her lips. Taking her almost untouched glass with her she slipped away and found herself a seat on a leather cushion in a corner.

"Lonesome, sister," a tall young man, weaving over so slightly and looking very much like Robert Montgomery, gave her a gentle shove and sat down beside her.

"Don't look so bored," he implored her earnestly. "I'm not bored really. I'm having a grand time."

"Honest?" He gave her his full attention. "How?" "Carol didn't know how to answer that," she said. "Tell me about yourself."

She didn't know that was the first line any woman should learn in the Art of Conversation with a Man. He took her hand.

"Nice long fingers," he murmured. "What's your name?" "Carol Kennedy. What's yours?" "Rebecca. Married. Carol?"

"No." She gulped the rest of the cocktail. "Too bad," too bad. He shook his head dolefully. Conversation seemed to come to an end.

Carol made another try. "Tell me more about yourself." "I am a father," he said dramatically and drained his glass. "Gimme your glass and I'll be back in a jiffy. Don't go away."

"You really want to hear about me?" he asked when he came back. She nodded.

"I don't work. I hate work. Don't you?" He looked at her hopefully. "I, I don't know. I never have worked."

"Don't," he advised her. "It interferes with pleasure except there isn't pleasure any more." He was very sad.

"Work should be pleasure. It should be something to lose yourself in," she answered.

He caught the serious note in her voice, looked hard at her and sighed. "Scuse me a moment." He rose. Carol was alone again. She didn't fit somehow and her mood of bright expectancy began to fade. Isabel was threading her way through the groups with a man in tow.

Carol Kennedy, this is John Kirkland," she introduced them. "Carol was a wisp in 'client' at college. John, you two should have a lot in common." And with that she left them.

Carol said, "I wish Isabel would light somewhere. I have something important to talk over with her."

He laughed at that. "You'll have to catch her in her office, I fear."

"I want her to help me find an apartment," Carol said.

"Are you a stranger in New York, Miss Kennedy?"

"Not so much in New York as I am to all this. This is my first cocktail."

She expected him to be surprised, possibly shocked. He reached over and took it from her hand.

"Don't drink it and don't mind being stranger to this sort of thing. It has no meaning."

"First it," she turned to him with quiet intensity. "The first is important. They're having fun. What's important?"

"If they were, it might be. But I don't think you'd have fun either way."

"Well, I mean to find out," she said with determination. "And I'm going to start by finding that apartment."

"Hello, John." It was a dapper young man who interrupted. "How are all the little test tubes today?" And after a pause—"Hope I didn't interrupt a twosome."

"Not at all," Kirkland was about to introduce them when Isabel caught his eye and beckoned for him to join her. Excusing himself, he left Carol alone with the stranger.

"Did I hear you say something about wanting to rent an apartment?" he asked Carol who nodded.

"Then, look, let's get out of here and I'll tell you about a bargain. The place is giving me a headache. Get your gloves and we'll run around the corner for a real cocktail."

Her first invitation from a man! She said, "But I don't know who you are."

"Never let a little thing like that stop you. I'm Garry Crandall."

The most fascinating man in New York, Isabel had said.

"Do we go?" he waited.

"We do," she answered.

GABBY ENROLLS IN NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY TO GET AN EDUCATION OR, PERHAPS, BECAUSE MARY ANN JOHNSON HAPPENS TO HAVE STARTED SCHOOL THERE

YESSUM—MY NAME'S GABRIEL GIBBS BUT FOLKS JINALLY ARE CALLED ME JESS "GABBY"

ARE YOU CERTAIN THESE HIGH SCHOOL CREDITS ARE REALLY YOURS?

GOLLY, NOW I'M A STUDENT BUT I FEEL THE SAME WONDER WHY THAT FELLA'S POINTIN' AT THOSE HOUSES

NOW OVER THERE IS—

SIGMA CHI—AND THERE—PHI GAMMA DELTA AND SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

WHERE'S PI KAPPA PHI

WHY, GABBY! WHAT MAKES YOU THINK THOSE BOYS ARE FOREIGNERS?

'CAUSE THEERED THE SPEAKEN CHINESE!

WELL, HOW'S THE PATIENT TODAY?

ABLE TO SIT UP AND POWDER HER NOSE

HMMM! HER PULSE IS A LITTLE FAST

THAT'S PROBABLY BECAUSE YOU'RE HOLDING HER HAND

SHE'S LOST A LOT OF WEIGHT—BUT SHE'LL BE O.K. IN A FEW DAYS—KEEP ON WITH THE MEDICINE—I'LL BE IN AGAIN TOMORROW

CHEERIO!

HE'S SWEET—I COULD RUN A TEMPERATURE OVER HIM MYSELF!

THE WAY I FEEL NOW I WOULDN'T GO TO THE WINDOW IF CLARK GABLE WAS GOING PAST!

WELL—YOU SAPS HAVE MADE OUR STATION THE LAUGHING STOCK OF THE POLICE FORCE—GET OUT ON YOUR BEAT!

I'LL PUNCH ANYONE THAT KICKS MY DOG!

YOU WON'T PUNCH ME!

WHY WON'T I PUNCH YOU?

BECAUSE I WON'T KICK YOUR DOG!

ALL ABOARD, EVERYONE WHO WANTS TO RIDE TO OUR NEW HOME

HURRY UP!

BUDDY AND I WILL RUN AHEAD AND OPEN THE GATE!

HEY! LOOK AT THAT OLD SIGN! THAT DOESN'T MEAN US ANYMORE!

NO SIR! I'VE BEEN WANTING TO TEAR IT DOWN AND DOWN SHE COMES RIGHT NOW!

KEEP OUT

HOW FAR DOWN ARE WE GOING, DAD?

DIDN'T YOU SAY THERE WAS A HOUSE ON THE PROPERTY?

YES, BUT DAD! REMEMBER, A MAN LIVES THERE WHO RAN BUDDY AND ME OUT OF HERE ONCE!

AND HE'S JUST THE FELLOW I'M LOOKING FOR!

HAVE YOU SEEN GRANDMA'S MAGNIFYING GLASS?

FIND SKEETER! I SAW HIM WITH IT!

WHEW!

YIELD OR DIE!

MEANWHILE, THE BLACK WARRIOR RUSHES AT BRICK TO CUT HIM DOWN!

AS THE MASKED VIKINGS CHARGE BRICK AND HARALD THE WHITE HORSE TRIPS AND FALLS

HARALD SPRINGS UPON HIS PROSTRATE FOE

HELLO NUMSKULL!

I GET FRESH! JUST AS SOON AS YOU ARE

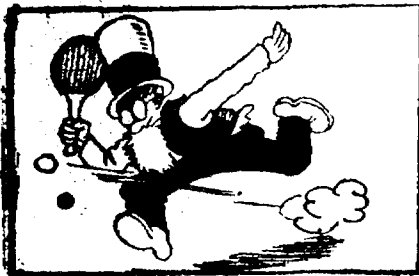

I DON'T HAVE TO PROVE IT

I ADMIT IT!

Traffic Court

G. L. Haywood, Louisa, Ky., paid a fine of $25 and costs Saturday night to H. O. Eveland, justice of peace, for using fictitious auto tags. Haywood was arrested by Deputy Miller Fissell on Route 23 north of Circleville. The officer reported Haywood had purchased a truck in Cincinnati and had failed to have the license transferred. He was enroute to the lake district for fruit.

Local Briefs

Men's Club to Meet—After a lapse because of the summer season, the Men's club of the Methodist church will meet Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. in the church basement.

Fish Fry Success—The fish fry held in Tarlton Friday evening netted $248 profit. The affair will be conducted annually, it has been announced.

Elks Attend Confab—Three officers of the local Elks lodge, Glen Geib, exalted ruler; Leland Pontius, secretary, and Harry Bartholomew, esquire, attended a conference of lodge officials in Chillicothe Sunday afternoon. About 30 from the 16 lodges in the southern Ohio district attended. Robert Dunde of Chillicothe, district deputy grand exalted ruler, was in charge. Short talks on activities of the various clubs and plans for the year were made.

TWO DRIVERS

len Price, Columbus, and others riding in it were: Ray Smith, Otto Moore, Carolyn Spars, and Lyda Trimmer, all of Columbus.
E. B. Copeland, W. Mount-st. swerved his car to avoid striking the cars that collided, and blew out a front tire. Mr. Copeland was driving south.
Deputy Miller Fissell and two state patrolmen investigated the accident.
Older made arrangements to settle his fine.
Seven Persons Hurt
In Auto Collision
Seven persons, five men and two women suffered minor cuts and bruises Sunday afternoon in an auto collision on Route 56, three miles north of Laureville.
The men were riding in a large Packard sedan, driven north by John Yezza, Cleveland. They were employed on a waterworks project in McArthur and were enroute to Columbus to a show.
The other car in the collision, a Chevrolet coupe, was being driven south by Ruth Horlacker, Dayton, and with her was Agnes Mertz, also of Dayton.
The right side of the Packard was crushed in and the front end of the Chevrolet was badly damaged. Dr. E. Hemmeger, Adelphi, treated those injured.
Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Earl Weaver investigated the accident. The Packard was taken to the G. L. Schiegar garage and the Chevrolet to the Harden-Stevenson garage.

Yellowbud Youth Hit-Run Victim
Charles T. Zurmehly, 18, of Yellowbud, a member of the CCC, died Saturday after being struck by a hit-skip motorist on Rt. 50 west of Rutledgeburg, Ross-co. His skull was fractured and his left side crushed.
His parents are both dead and he has been making his home with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Hafe Murphy of Yellowbud. The funeral was Monday morning.
Three sisters, Claire of New Holland, Jean of Chillicothe, and Naomi of Yellowbud, survive.

FOUR KILLED IN WEEK-END TRAFFIC

COLUMBUS, Sept. 23—Four week-end traffic deaths were counted in this area today, while a dozen other persons were hurt.
Earl Ballinger, 45, and Arthur Justice, 42, were pitched to the street and fatally injured when a truck bearing the Volunteers of America baseball team and rosters to London for a game at the prison farm, hit a rough stretch of road.

The chain supporting the endgate snapped. Harry Daniels, 39, and Thomas Lumpkin, 63, were seriously hurt in the same accident. The men, guests of the Volunteers, were homeless.

An auto driven by John Halliday killed Frank Windom, 47. The motorist said the lights of another car blinded him and he did not see Windom, who was pushing a junk cart.

The fourth fatality occurred in Delaware, with Edward Ewers, 48, Barborton, the victim. Police exonerated the driver, Dr. M. S. Cherington.

BARRYMORE'S HOPES ENDED BY HIS WIFE

No Reconciliation Possible, Says the Former Dolores Costello of Husband

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23—John Barrymore, great lover of the stage and screen, may expect to continue as the husband of Dolores Costello, his beautiful estranged wife, as reported from Gallup, N. M., but Miss Costello has an entirely different idea, she revealed today.

Emerging temporarily from her rigidly maintained seclusion the mother of Barrymore's two children emphatically declared there would be no reconciliation, adding she expected to obtain her divorce in ten days.

"There is no possibility of a reconciliation under any circumstances," Miss Costello declared. While the world watched with amused interest the strange hide-and-seek game which Barrymore played with his 19-year-old protégée, Elaine Barrie, Miss Costello let it be known she had no interest in the affair. In fact, she claimed to know nothing whatsoever about it.

The first mail on the American continent started from New York for Boston, Jan. 1, 1673.

AGE PENSION

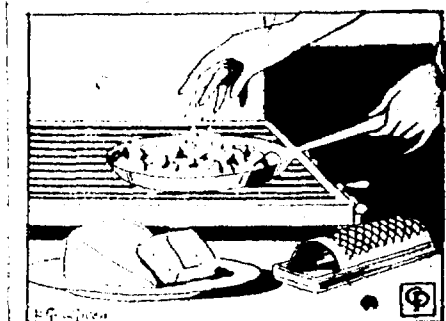

between Mr. Perodin and the Lorain-co board which sought to add another worker to the staff in that county.

Again the report charges, "that administrative staffs both in state and county have in general been persons of very limited education, that the civil service has been evaded and defeated, and that the head of the division of aid for the aged has usurped authority belonging to local boards."

Administration Hilt
The survey points out that the state of New York, which has almost twice the population of Ohio spends less for pensions than this state. The blame for this situation is placed upon faulty administration, "careless and ignorant methods of work resulting in duplication of relief, and failure to follow up cases to discover and utilize other resources for recipients which would make aid for the aged awards unnecessary."

More careful and selective methods of awarding payments could reduce the pension list by 22,000, the report charged.

We don't know
what MR. COCHRANE smokes
and he is not endorsing our cigarette
but he is an outstanding man in the baseball
world and has won his place on merit

In the cigarette world,
Chesterfields are thought of as outstanding...

—they have won their place
strictly on merit

Outstanding
.. for mildness
.. for better taste

MICKEY COCHRANE—of the Detroit Tigers,
American League Champions; player-manager,
one of baseball's greatest catchers.

Days She Dreads
Always her fate, again she must have to send regrets and for the most important parties of the whole month.
Unnecessary? Yes! but she does not realize it — she just goes on worrying and suffering "periodic pain." She thanks her friends are just "lucky," but VATONA has taught them that suffering is unnecessary, almost inexorable.
VATONA does not interfere with the natural process, but does prevent unnatural pain. Doctors prescribe it and druggists recommend it as the one-purpose corrective.

VATONA—Sedative—Antispasmodic
VATO—Hygienic—Aromatic—Powder
